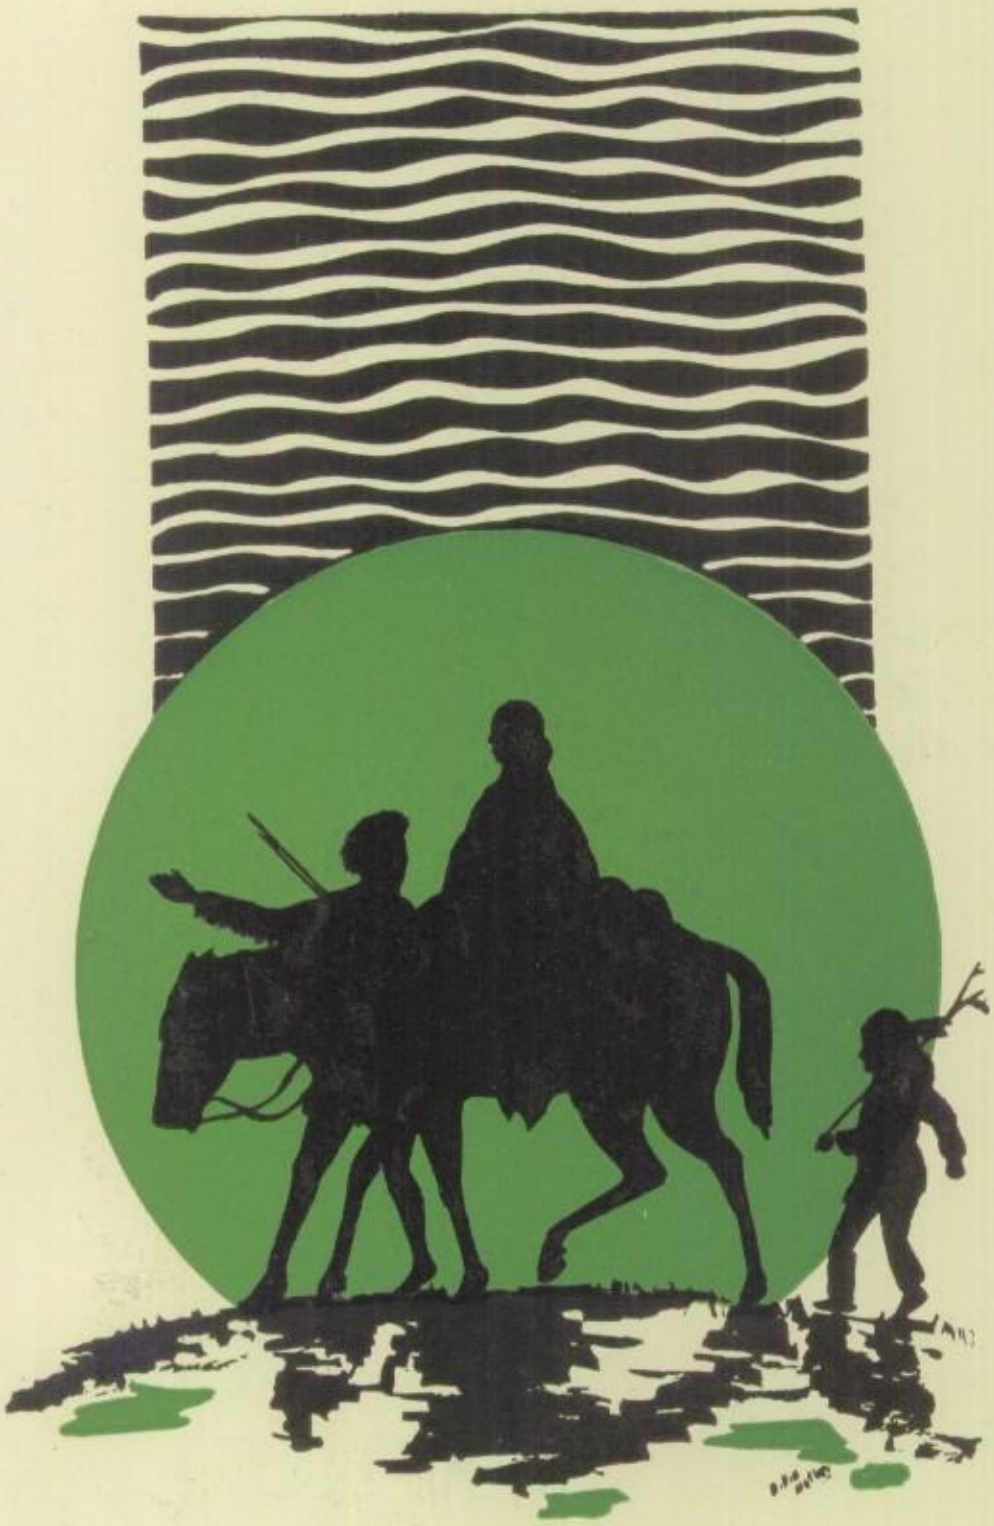
Missouri, Mother of West



THEME

Missouri, the Mother of the West, represents the starting point of those great western movements, the Santa Fe and Oregon Trails, the Gold Rush, and the Pony Express. All over the West today place names of pioneer Missourians testify to the dauntless spirit of those brave men and women.

We dedicate this section to a native Missourian, that beloved poet laureate of the children, Eugene Field. He was born in 1850 in St. Louis, died in 1895 in Chicago. He was educated at Williams College and the University of Missouri. While he was known in newspaper circles as a journalist, Field's great fame came from his delightful pictures of child life and adventure. For this work his generous humor, playfulness, and gaiety were aptly suited. His "Little Boy Blue" is universally known.

HAIL, MISSOURI!

Hail, Fair Missouri

A mighty river rolling by
A land of beauty. God, May I
See clearly always, till I die,
Her quiet beauty.

No lofty mountains, towering, steep;
No moors that secrets seem to keep;
No lakes, mysterious and deep,
That shine and sparkle.

Nothing fantastic and queer.
Only lovely nature here;
Smiling fields, and streamlets near,
And wooded highlands.

Cabins nestled in the hills
Where farmers each his broad land tills,
And each his barn at autumn fills
With harvest's bounty.

Simple lives and simple scene,
The golden wheat fields, meadows green.
Where nothing's small and nothing's mean
And all is sunny.

My dear state! Home land that is blessed
With all this is loveliest.
The State that's mother of the west,
Hail! Fair Missouri!

MISSOURI, THE MOTHER OF THE WEST

In that era of American history known as the Western Expansion, when the United States was developing from a small seaboard country to a nation stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Missouri played an important role. As a starting point for the Oregon and Sante Fe trails, her position is indisputable as the Mother of the West, for it was over these two trails that the tide of human life, made restless by the evidence of an enroaching civilization, once more resumed its search for new and untamed lands.

What a tale of human emotion, petty and sublime, might these two trails relate! The lone pathfinder forced on by indomitable will and perseverance, to be followed by the pioneer home builder with his oxen team and covered wagon. The pathway once rang with the war cry of the Indian, its wayside once concealed the mutilated remains of his victim. Then came the years when its lengths were crowded with frenzied men lured from their homes to endure unbelievable hardships by the irresistible gleam of the gold in the far away California. This stream of life had its starting point at Independence, Missouri. Here caravans were organized and outfitted. Here started the Western Expansion.

Of the two trails, the Sante Fe is the older, and more deeply steeped in romantic associations. Many towns claim to be the beginning of the trail, but the one trail marked and surveyed by Congressional authority began at Fort Osage, now the town of Sibley, and followed the trail as taken by Zebulon M. Pike.

The Oregon Trail was started in 1844, when a thousand emigrants gathered at Independence, Missouri, to set out for Oregon. This band followed the trail of Lewis and Clark.

One historian has said that the opening of the Santa Fe and the Oregon trails was like the opening of a business street through the wilderness. The towns of Missouri prospered and grew rich with the constant flow of trade and money through their midst. The two trails were the main arteries of trade from one coast to the other, and maintained their positions until the coming of the railroad a quarter of a century later. Gradually the trade dwindled into nothingness, the locomotive took the place of the ox and horse, but the importance of Missouri's role at this time can never be taken from her.

PRE-HISTORIC MISSOURI

Missouri's only claim to natural phenomea, for which this continent is noted, lies in her possession of immense underground caverns. The entire state is honeycombed with caves large and small, and two of the largest caves in the world are found here. Of late, attention has been paid our state by geologists and archaeologists, in the hope of solving some of the unexplained mysteries of an ancient people and civilization. Excavations in the floors and walls of these caves have revealed fossils of animal life existing below sea level. At one period, no doubt, this country was a sea, and has gradually arisen to its present level only through centuries of time.

The Marvel Cave, in Stone County, is the third largest cave in America. It was first explored by miners in search for possible veins of lead and zinc. The cave contains about thirty-five miles of underground passageways. There are forty rooms of various sizes at intervals along its passages. The main room at the bottom of the cave is large enough to contain the Capitol Building at Washington.

The Miller Cave, in Pulaski County, is much the older cave. It opens into a huge bluff above Pine River. Relics of prehistoric man are abundant in its strata, relics dating from the early stone age. Crude implements and the bones of our predecessors have been excavated. Its full archaeological wealth has not yet been fully exploited, but perhaps before many more years we shall have a complete picture of the very first Missourian.

DANIEL BOONE IN MISSOURI

The last twenty-five years of the life of Daniel Boone were spent in Missouri. His life during this period was very interesting. His old home, located in the upper part of St. Charles, is visited every year by thousands of pilgrims.

Boone built his cabin at that place because of a spring which furnished plenty of cool water, and was a meeting place for deer and other game. There are few such springs anywhere in this country.

About 1790, the honest old pioneer had given up his rights in the now famous bluegrass country of Kentucky, because he was burdened with debts which he could not pay. He moved his family to the valley of the Kanahwa. In 1795, when Boone was sixty-one years of age, he journeyed with his family to St. Charles, Missouri.

On their arrival in St. Louis, the Boone family, whose fame had traveled before them, were treated as distinguished guests. Before his departure from Kanahwa Daniel Boone had been presented with a grant for one thousand arpents of land, to be located where he pleased in the "District of the Femme Osage". He chose to locate about five miles from the present town of Augusta. There Boone and his son built their first cabin and a town, called Missouriton, in honor of the river on whose banks it stood.

The population of Femme Osage had increased so much that it required a local government. Boone was appointed commandant of the district. One of Boone's duties was to render judgment upon wrong doers. This resulted in punishment from "Boone's Judgment Tree," a tree that was used as a whipping post, in Boone's yard.

Boone's stone mansion was completed in 1813. It was the first stone house built west of the Mississippi. Many similar houses were later built, but none could equal Boone's mansion. Several years were given over to building this house, which consisted of seven rooms. Daniel Boone occupied a small diagonal room to the right of the hall on the first floor. It was in this room that the famous pioneer spent his last years, and there he died, September 26, 1820.

THE MISSOURI MULE

While the term "Missouri mule" has become proverbial, in the pioneer days of 1825 Missourians were frankly curious concerning the mule. He was the talk of the town in Columbia, for there appeared on December 8, 1825, the first advertisement of a "jack" being offered for sale in Missouri. He was the property of Thomas D. Grant, who called him Tontalegro, a high-sounding name for a mule. People called him the Spanish horse, and everyone was uncertain as to his real origin, and what name would fitly describe him. Sufficient proof as to the ignorance of the people concerning mules is shown in the following advertisement: "FOR SALE: The subscriber has for sale five jennets, and one jack. He may be seen at the house of Mr. John Bloy, upstairs."

The first mules to enter Missouri came from Mexico, over the Santa Fe Trail. Mules sold on the market at from twenty to thirty dollars, while horses sold at a much lower price. The Indians were also interested in mules, and frequent accounts at this time show how eager they were to own them, and what unscrupulous methods they used to obtain possession of them.

The Franklin, Missouri, "Intelligencer" of October 30, 1835, gives some ideas as to the extensive trade in mules. It reads:

"The company of traders which left this and neighboring countries last spring for Santa Fe, have been arriving here for some days past. We are much gratified to learn that our fellow-citizens have met with their usual success. They have brought with them upwards of 300 mules, besides furs, etc."

These traders often met thieving Indians along their routes. The Navajo Indians had sometimes murdered those guarding the herds, and driven away many mules. One instance is recalled of a company's losing many mules on their return journey. The sentinel was awakened and terrified by a terrible noise. He came into camp screaming, "Indians! Indians!" This alarmed the mules, and caused them to break loose, with the resulting loss of about 130 of them.

Mule raising in Missouri began in 1840, and was a firmly established business by 1850.

"SHOW ME; I'M FROM MISSOURI"

Many stories concerning the origin of this expression are current, so that it is difficult to say exactly which is the authentic one. The following was related in the St. Louis Star in 1921, in connection with Missouri's centennial celebration of statehood.

About 1897 a member of the Kansas City Times staff was in Denver, and overheard a clerk in one of the hotels, in referring to a green bell-hop, say, "He's from Missouri; some of you boys show him."

Inquiry proved that the expression was current in Denver, although it had not been heard in Missouri. It developed that the phrase had originated in the mining town of Leadville, Colorado, where a strike had been in progress for a long time. A number of miners from the lead and zinc district of southwest Missouri had been imported to take the places of the strikers.

These miners were unfamiliar with the methods used in the Leadville district, and it was necessary to give them frequent instructions. In fact, pit bosses were constantly using the expression, "That man is from Missouri; you'll have to show him." The phrase soon became current above ground, and was used as a term of reproach by strikers and their friends toward all men who were at work.

Within a few months the expression was current around hotels in Kansas City, and by 1898 had reached St. Louis. Its circulation was at first due largely to traveling men. Before long it had begun to appear in print, and after-dinner speakers put their stamp of approval upon it.

The article further states that, "like the grain of dirt in the oyster shell, the process of assimilation has changed the expression from a term of reproach to a term of approval." Missourians everywhere today are proud to admit that they belong to the "Show-Me" state, whatever the origin of the expression.

FIRST PONY EXPRESS

An exciting incident in the history of our state is the tale of the first pony express, the longest race for the largest stake ever won in America.

In 1850, St. Joseph was the western terminus of railroad communication. Beyond this the stage coach, the saddle horse and the ox trains were the only means of communication and commerce with the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast.

It is told that a certain high government official made a bet of two hundred thousand dollars, that if a mail system were to be established between Sacramento and St. Joseph, a distance of 1950 miles, mail could be delivered within ten days, and thereby hangs our tale. The bet was taken up. The time of starting was set as April eighth. Three hundred of the fleetest horses in the country were selected. One hundred twenty-five of the most expert and daring of riders were hired. Each rider was to ride sixty miles, with two minutes allowed for the changing of animals. Horses were to be stationed ten to twenty miles apart.

After all provisions were made, began the difficult and spectacular race against time. The rider had to endure all manner of obstacles. On the mountains was snow, through which the rider must pass. One rider was lost for a time in a snowstorm. All the streams were swollen from the spring rains. Fording was practically impossible. One rider's horse was mired in midstream, and was drowned. The rider, with the mail packet, swam the freshet and walked ten miles to the next station.

On April 18, a large crowd was assembled at St. Joseph to witness the outcome of the ride. A drizzle of rain added to the gloom of the atmosphere. Only seven minutes was left in which the bet could be won. What was that! The sound of galloping hoofs was heard. With exactly five minutes to spare, the first packet of mail ever delivered by pony express was delivered at the St. Joseph post office.

THE GREAT SEAL OF MISSOURI

Every Missourian is familiar with his state's seal. He would immediately recognize the two bears reared on hind feet, gazing into space, as figures on the seal. However, few Missourians are acquainted with the principles and real significance of this coat of arms, and do not realize that this little emblem was provided for in a bill passed by the first great assembly of Missouri, and that it was later systematically worked out by men versed in the language of heraldry. Briefly this is what is apparent when one looks at Missouri's state seal.

The central figures, the two grizzly bears, are peculiarly appropriate to a state traversed by the Missouri River. The bear is a native of the mountainous regions in which the Missouri River has its beginning. In our coat of arms he signifies the strength and size of the state, and the courage of the people; furthermore, the bears represent protection from invasion from every source.

The two bears rest their front feet on a shield inscribed with three separate figures. The first is a crescent moon. In heraldry the crescent on a shield represents a second son, so the crescent on our shield denotes the fact that Missouri was the second state formed of the Louisiana Purchase. The second figure is the national coat of arms, the eagle of the United States. This figure represents our allegiance to the national government. The third figure represent our state as a part of the national government.

The helmet at the top of the shield indicates preparation for service, and signifies state sovereignty. The motto encircling the shield, "United we stand, divided we fall," is the national motto; while the state motto, "Salue populi suprema lex esto," "Let the welfare of the people be the supreme law," is from the Latin of Cicero, and occupies the center of the emblem. The Latin number MDCCCXX, or 1820, is the date of the formation of state government.

Directly above the helmet are twenty-four stars in the midst of a cloud. A star in the center is larger than the rest. This star represents Missouri, twenty-fourth state, and the constellation of twenty-three stars is the union of states into which Missouri has been admitted. The star ascending from a cloud shows Missouri surmounting difficulties and taking her place among the states, not as an insignificant state, but one of great size and brilliance.

This, in brief, is the significance of our state seal.

WHAT IS A MISSOURIAN ?

The following is the definition of a Missourian, given by Senator Meyers, of Montana, a former Missourian.

"Missouri, in different ways, occupies a unique position; unique in geography, history, and population. In the North she is called the South. In the South she is called the North. In the East she is called the West, and in the West she is called the East. She combines the good of all of these. She is almost the center of the United States, and may be considered the center of the world. Her population commingles Southern hospitality, Yankee shrewdness, German thrift, Irish generosity, Western enterprise. She combines Virginia's culture with the intense patriotism of Massachusetts.

"Sturdy manhood from the North and South, and sturdy comers from nearly every European country meet here, and make the Missouri product. The warm chivalric blood of the South commingles with the rigid virtues of the New England puritanism.

"Here it is that a man is a man, and he is what he makes himself, no matter what his ancestry."

A SUCCESSFUL MAN'S CREED

Exactly fifty years ago a young country editor, Walter Williams, left Booneville, Missouri, and went to Columbia, Missouri, to take charge of a newspaper. He is still in Columbia, but is now president of the University of Missouri.

In this administrative capacity he is in a position to give worth while advice to the young men and women with whom he comes in contact. No advice can be any more straightforward than that outlined by Mr. Williams in his nine points for a successful life:

"A continuing education that goes on and on. A sense of humor. Tireless curiosity. Patience. An everready smile. Friendliness to all, whatever the position. Some dollars, but not too much money, because that makes a man put too much emphasis on it. More imagination. Courage and faith."

With such a creed a young person can go as far as he wishes.

TO MISSOURI

Old Missouri: We salute you
Mother state of famous men
State of doctor, lawyer, statesman
And of those who yield the pen.

Throughout all the years and decades
You have done your share, 'tis true,
But we're hoping and expecting
Even better things for you.

In the coming generation
May our hopes be not in vain,
May we write our future history
More of glory, less of pain.

Let us then, my fellow-students,
With the will to do or die
Grasp the brand, and send it flaming
Like a challenge, to the sky.

—Robin A. McClaren, '33.

OZARK HILLS

Hazy horizon —
Blue smoke, curling like feathery plumes
To the sky —
Patches of Shasta daisies
Huddled together like sheep
On a hillside;
The scent of cedar
In the air;
A lone buzzard, circling above,
And in the distance
Three grey peaks.
These I see,
These I know,
These I love.

—Hasseltine Sims, '33.

LITTLE BOY BLUE

While Eugene Field has written many beautiful poems for children, the one having the greatest appeal for both children and adults is "Little Boy Blue."

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and stanch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dreamt of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue —
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there?

To Walter Williams, the outstanding journalist of Missouri and of the nation, do we dedicate this section. Mr. Williams was born in Booneville, Missouri, in 1864. As president of Missouri University he holds the unique position of being the only college professor with neither a college education nor a degree. He has the distinction of founding the first school of journalism in the world at the University of Missouri, twenty-five years ago. Missouri is proud of her pioneer journalist.

Student Council -- First Semester

The Student Council of Joplin High School was organized in the fall term of 1928. It is made up of 32 members, each member being a representative of his home room. These representatives must have an average scholarship of at least "M". The President and secretary of this organization are elected by the student body at the beginning of each semester. The president must be a member of the senior class. He is nominated by the faculty and then elected by the student body. The secretary is also elected by the student body. Both these officers must be of high scholastic standing. The other officers are selected by the members of the Council from the Council itself. Meetings are held each Monday morning at the activity hour.

The Student Council acts as an advisory body for the students. It makes regulations for classes, activities, students, assemblies, and organizations. Before these regulations passed by the society become official they must be approved by the principal.

Much of the success of this organization in 1932-1933 was due to the splendid leadership, cooperation, and untiring efforts of the two efficient sponsors, Miss Ione Elliott and Miss Bess Buckeridge. They gave their time, enthusiastic support, and effective aid to all the projects undertaken by the council.

Student Council -- Second Semester

Very much valuable work was accomplished by the Student Council in 1932-1933. The Constitution was revised and several valuable amendments were made.

The Student Council sponsored the formation and installation of the Junior Red Cross. Each section room was a chapter in itself and received the monthly Red Cross magazine. These chapters were encouraged to make scrap-books for the veterans in the government hospitals of Missouri.

The council also promoted the decoration and cleaning of the section rooms. Pictures, maps, and charts were put into the class rooms to adorn and beautify them. The rock case in the upper hall was cleaned up and straightened. The school premises were also kept clean and shrubs were placed around the buildings. At Christmas, holiday decorations and lights were placed across the front of the High School.

A committee of the council took over the assemblies and gave a special Student Council Assembly. Later this committee planned other student assemblies. On one occasion they charged an admission fee of two coat-hangers, and earned a nice sum from the sale of them. On May 5 another program was given in assembly by members of the Student Council. This program, humorous in nature, depicted a model student council meeting. It was well received by the student body.

A Summary of the Year

There are twelve departments of instruction, including the library, in Joplin High School, with a staff of forty teachers.

The enrollment of 1281 students for 1933 shows an increase of 106 over 1932, with 1175 students.

The average number belonging in 1933 was 1214, as compared with 1139 for 1932.

The number of boys enrolled in 1932 was 562, and in 1933, 645. The number of girls enrolled for the respective years was 613 and 636.

The number of tuition students in 1932 was 68, as compared with 115 in 1933.

The number of graduates for 1933 is 345, an increase of 73 over 1932's class of 272.

This year 1931-32 found 59 Joplin High School graduates attending the various colleges in the country.

The school cafeteria serves an average number of 8,000 to 10,000 student lunches each month, at an average cost of nine and one-half cents per lunch. Twenty-six students are employed in the cafeteria.

The department of teacher training was discontinued this year because of the loss of state aid for that fund.

The approximate number enrolled in the various departments during the past year is as follows: English, including 129 speech students, 1212; history 719; sociology and economics 184; mathmatics 326; science 530; Spanish 254; French 85; Latin 183; commerce, including retail selling and commercial law 880; psychology 23; domestic science 61; domestic art 111; manual training 101; mechanical drawing 129.

The trade school has an enrollment of 13 carpentry students, and 40 auto mechanics students.

The girls' gymnasium classes have an enrollment of 254. As the majority of boys are enrolled in R. O. T. C., the boys' gymnasium classes have only 40 members,

The R. O. T. C. has an enrollment of 312 boys.

The combined glee clubs have approximately 80 members, while the orchestra has about 100 members, and the band 105 members.

In the past eight years the subjects of public speech, psychology, salesmanship, mechanical drawing, auto mechanics, and carpentry have been added to our course of study. As these classes are all popular with the students, the enrollment in them shows a steady increase.

Joplin High School in the present building was opened in January, 1918. The estimated capacity of the new building was about 1,000 students. The first year's enrollment, including freshmen, was about 900. The graduates numbered 101.

By 1922 the enrollment had increased to the extent that the old high school building on Fourth and Byers was re-opened, and a freshman high school was organized for just the freshman of Joplin High School. This was said to be the only school of its type in the United States, and became the nucleus for our present junior high school system.

The crowded condition in the high school building was thus relieved, and the personnel has since been restricted to the upper three classes.

It is interesting to note that in 1918 the enrollment was about 900 students, while in 1933 there are 1281 students, excluding freshmen. For the past two years the building has been taxed to its utmost capacity.

To Miss Susan E. Blow is this section dedicated. Miss Blow holds the distinction of having established the first successful kindergarten in this country, in the public school system of St. Louis in 1873. The success of this addition was immediate, and the idea spread rapidly over the entire country. Miss Blow was born at St. Louis in 1847, and died in New York 1916. To such achievements as that of Miss Blow does civilization owe its advancement.

Joplin High is proud of such representatives as these. The class has a high scholastic standing. The Joplimo and Spyglass claim many juniors. In the various musical organizations is a good sprinkling of juniors who are rapidly coming into first place as valuable musicians.

The class play, produced December 16, was quite successful. "The Things that Count" brought out the best in its capable actors.

The oration contest was won by three juniors. Norman Sharp placed first, and John McGehee and John Gunn second and third respectively.

Opal Lovesee won second place in the soprano part of the preliminary vocal contest, and Walter Branch merited the same place for bass. The winning cellist was Joan Harrison, a junior. Other juniors to place were Jerry Calvin, second in violin, Clarence Bethel, second flutist, and Robert Walker, second French horn.

HAVE YOU?

Have you seen those Ozark Mountains
When the sun is going down?
Have you seen those lakes and rivers
Where the bass and trout are found?
Have you seen our mountain highways
Where they rise to meet the blue?
If you haven't, then I'm saying, friend,
There's lots in store for you.

Motto: "To be, not to seem"

Approximately four hundred strong the sophomores entered Senior High School last year. They have applied themselves diligently to their work, and show promise of being excellent citizens by the end of the 1934-'35 year.

On February 3 the class was represented before the student body in an assembly program. This was a high-class entertainment, corresponding to the class plays of the two upper classes. The scene was a night club, and the floor show presented was excellent.

A good many turned out for the spring debate tournament. The class is well represented in the musical organizations also. In the preliminary solo contests held March 17, Anna Marie Jewett won first place in the alto group, while Marjorie Bullock, Frances Haynie, and Billy Roby placed in other events.

MY GRANDMA

My grandma has the loveliest voice,
I think I've ever heard,
So soft, and sweet, and soothing,
Like the cooing of a bird.

My grandma had the sweetest smile,
I think I've ever seen;
A smile one might expect to see
As an angel's welcoming.

My grandma had the prettiest eyes
E'er seen upon this earth,
So bright, and blue, and sparkling,
They held such kindly mirth.

But Grandma now has gone to God,
He needed her you see,
To teach his angels how to live
As lovely a life as she.

—Virginia Emerson, '33

Third place in poetry contest.

MARK TWAIN ON "HOW I EDITED AN AGRICULTURAL PAPER"

In about a half hour an old gentleman, with a flowing beard and a rather austere face, entered, and sat down at my invitation. He seemed to have something on his mind. He took off his hat and set it on the floor, and got out of it a red silk handkerchief, and a copy of our paper.

He put the paper on his lap, and while he polished his spectacles with his handkerchief, he said, "Are you the new editor?"

I said I was.

"Have you ever edited an agricultural paper before?"

"No," I said, "this is my first attempt."

"Very likely. Have you had any experience in agriculture?"

"No; I believe I have not."

"Some instinct told me," said the old gentleman, putting on the spectacles and looking over them at me with asperity, while he folded his paper into a convenient shape. "I wish to read you what must have made me have that instinct. It was this editorial. Listen, and see if it was you that wrote it:

" 'Turnips should never be pulled: it injures them. It is much better to send a boy up and let him shake the tree.' Now, what do you think of that?—for I really suppose you wrote it?"

"Think of it? Why, I think it is good. I think it is sense. I have no doubt that every year millions and millions of bushels of turnips are spoiled in this township alone by being pulled in a half-ripe condition, when if they had sent a boy up to shake the tree."

"Shake your grandmother! Turnips don't grow on trees!"

"Oh, they don't do they? Well, who said they did? The language was intended to be figurative, wholly figurative. Anybody that knows anything will know that I meant that the boy should shake the vine."

Then this old person got up and tore his paper into small shreds, and stamped on them, and broke several things with his cane, and said I did not know as much as a cow; and then he went out and banged the door after him, and, in short, acted in such a way that I fancied that he was displeased about something. But not knowing what the trouble was, I could not be of any help to him.

BE PROUD OF MISSOURI

Are you proud of your native state? You ought to be, and it doesn't make any difference whether you live in Missouri, in Kansas, in Oklahoma, or in Arkansas.

Glenn A. Grant, a resident of Kansas City, writing in "Missouri," official organ of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, tells of visiting recently in Lincoln with his wife when he overheard her say: "I have really come to a point where I am not ashamed to acknowledge that I am from Missouri."

"Not ashamed to acknowledge that she is from Missouri!" snorts Bryant. "Ye gods— and yet that was a very far-reaching compliment. She is a convert. She likes it. She is proud to call Missouri her home. I am proud of the fact that Missouri is my home. I will shout, work and fight for Missouri. As Missouri is my home, certainly I shall defend it, extol it, sell it."

In connection with the commendable resolution, Mr. Bryant points out some argument making it a logical conclusion. For example:

Iowa is perhaps the outstanding agriculture state, yet her lands will raise no more than the fertile lands of northwest Missouri, or the delta of the southeast portion of the state.

Nebraska and Kansas are prominent in wheat production, yet central, southeast, and southwest Missouri can boast of just as heavy yields.

Illinois has her corn and her clover, but portions of Missouri produce both just as abundantly.

Minnesota can boast of her lakes, but are there any that compare with the Lake of the Ozarks, which is merely in its infancy in development?

Colorado may attract the trout fishers, but the Ozarks of Missouri are full of black bass streams, alive with the gamey finn boys that will give any fisherman a snappy fight.

Deer hunting is supposed to belong to the north wood, but did not our Ozarks provide this same sport the past winter?

Oregon advertised her fruit to the world, but those are so common to our Missouri territory that we think very little of our vast production.

Texas is known as the "Big Steer" state, but they send them to north Missouri to be finished for market on good Missouri corn.

California advertises her climate, and sells it, but who would not have preferred to winter in Missouri last winter? California may sport salt water beaches, but someone has said Missouri has more drinking water to swim in than any other state in the union.

Chicago may have more gangsters, but we are still paying our teachers and policemen promptly with real money.

Be proud of Missouri!

—A clipping from a Missouri Newspaper.

This section is appropriately dedicated to James Buchanan Eads, Missouri's illustrious construction engineer. His talents were lavished upon making the Mississippi more navigable. His notable steel arch bridge across the Mississippi at St. Louis, his improvement of the South Pass, of the Missouri delta, and his great plan for deepening the river by means of jetties, mark his constructive genuis. Although born in Lawrenceberg, Indiana, Mr. Eads spent the greater part of his life in Missouri, and his most notable engineering feats were performed here.

State Debate Team

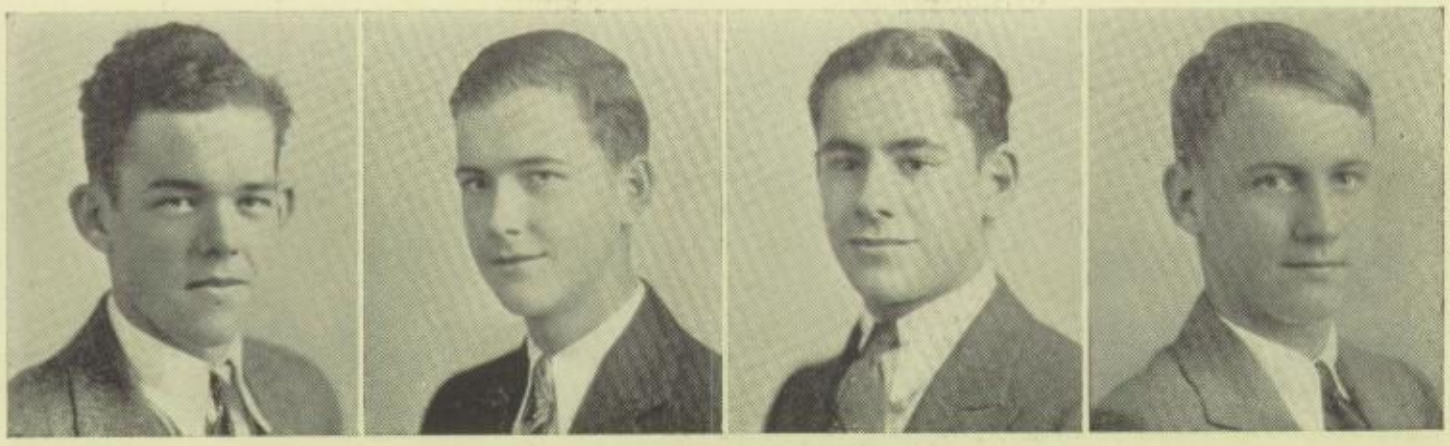
The committee for selecting the State Debate team this year was composed of Mr. H. E. Blaine, principal, and Miss Moran. The members they chose were Billy Brittain, Glennis Lee Doty, Kenneth Gorsuch, and J. Neff Wells, Jr.

These debaters on January 13, participated in the tournament held in Webb City for the purpose of deciding the winner of Webb City, Nevada, Carthage, and Joplin. The affirmative team, composed of Billy Brittain and Glennis Lee Doty, won over Nevada; the negative team, Kenneth Gorsuch and Glennis Lee Doty, won over Carthage, but lost to Webb City. Thus they were eliminated from the State League debating for this term. The enthusiasm of the team, however, was not diminished.

Billy Brittain and Glennis Lee Doty, on February 3, debated in the Topeka High School before a student body of twenty-five hundred. Although they lost by a 2-1 decision, they had a month before won over the same team—one member of which had debated in the National tournament a year ago—on the same side of the question. Brittain was ranked first of the four speakers, by two of the three State Supreme Court judges who gave the decision. Later they won over Marshall and Normandy who were then eligible to compete for State Championship.

J. Neff Wells and Billy Brittain, on April 7, brought to a climax our success by winning over the Commerce High School team of Commerce, Oklahoma. That winning was vastly important in that the Commerce team had won first place in the William Woods tournament, second place in the Boliver tournament, and champion in the District Tournament, held in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

The work of the debaters has been outstanding this year. They have won twenty-two times on the affirmative side and sixteen times on the negative—having had fewer debates on that side—of the State question which is: "Resolved, that at least one-half of all state and local revenues should be derived from sources other than tangible property."



Stevens, Seiler, Alles, Fowks

Tournament Team

For the first time, Joplin this year sponsored an invitation debate tournament for high school debaters. Twenty-five schools were invited. The original plan was to enter merely our first tournament team. That team was composed of Harry Alles, Bobby Fowks, Paul Stevens, and Allan Seiler.

As only seven schools—Nevada, Webb City, Wheaton, Aurora, Golden City, Jasper, and Springfield—accepted the invitation, it became necessary, in order to have complete brackets, for Joplin to enter more teams.

Those teams, consisting of Robert Richards, Marjorie Birks, Jefferson Herb, Dick Cole, Garret Morrison, Claude Parker, John Sohosky, Richard Fleischaker, Rogler Elliott, Rex Titus, Richard Craig, Paul Church, Loren Watson, Gwendolyn Bushner, and Margaret Couraw, not only participated in the Joplin tournament but also in the Coffeyville and Boliver tournaments.

Though all teams did exceeding fine credible work, the record of not any excelled that of the tournament team, every member of which earned degrees of excellence in the National Forensic League.

Harry Alles and Bobby Fowks, who upheld the affirmative side of the State question, won over Golden City, Aurora, and Nevada in the Joplin tournament; and over Ramona, Neodesha, Independence, and Pittsburg in the Coffeyville tournament. Allan Seiler and Paul Stevens, who upheld the negative side of the question won over Nevada and Wheaton in our tournament; and over Pittsburg, Coffeyville, Independence, and Ramona in the Coffeyville tournament.

A good precedent, indeed, have they set for tournament teams.

Spring Tournament Group

The eighty-eight students who actually participated in at least the first five rounds of the Annual Spring Debate Tournament were classified in four brackets: red, blue, green and orange.

The question debated was: "Resolved, That a state income tax should be generally adopted."

Those entering the tournament are as follows: L. C. F.'s—Herbert Kirchman, Ted Bormaster, Harry Alles, Russell Duncan, Joe Dawson, Robert Walker, Herman Shelton, Karl McReynolds, Frank Moore, Leroy Douglas, Jack Featherston, Robert Guinn, Ralph Drennan, Marion Main, Herman Wallace, Jack Longenecker, Darrol Smith, Warren Lippett, Hoyt Miles, Ivan Saunders, Claude Parker, Garrett Morrison, Floyd Cozad, and Richard Craig; Herculeans:—Rex Titus, Bobby Fowks, Richard Fleischaker, Jefferson Herb, Dick Cole, Rogler Elliott, John McGehee, Robert Richards, Norman Sharp, Billy Dabney, John Pickett, Allan Seiler, Ned Smith, Ted Gault, Homer Potter, Henry Hamilton, Carl Anderson, Bob Gardner, and Marshall Bradley; G. Q.'s—Gilbert Fenix, B. A. Pugh, Jack Sheppard, James Poyner, John Gunn, Charles Schaeffer, and Billy Brett; Athenaeums:—Irving Merry, Paul Church, Loren Watson, Sherman Sheppard, Fred Childress and James Knight; Independents:—Bob White, Ray Burris, Charles Clinton, Billie Marie Varner and Harold Hill; Olympiads: Margaret Briggs, Maxine Davis, Carolyn Briggs, Betty Peacock, Maxine Elsner, Emily Anderson, Betty Waggoner, Marjorie Krieckhaus and Helen Marguerite Ritchey; Sapphonians:—Mary Jane Hill, Lois Winter, Shirley Sullens and Florence Hazell; Philogians:—Ellen Berniece Stewart and Sybill Schaeffer; Castalians:—Marjorie Birks, Maxine DeVaney, Margaret Couraw, Mary Brewer, Ghyneth Abrams, and Gwendolyn Bushner.

Birks, DeVaney, McGehee, Elliott

Spring Tournament Finalists

The results of the first five rounds of the Annual Spring Debate tournament are as follows:

In the Red Bracket the high affirmative team was composed of Rex Titus and Richard Craig; the high negative team, Claude Parker and Garrett Morrison. In the Blue Bracket the high affirmative team was composed of Rogler Elliott and John McGehee; the high negative, Robert Richards and Norman Sharp. In the Green Bracket the high affirmative team was composed of Marjorie Birks and Maxine DeVaney; the high negative, Harry Alles and Russell Duncan. In the Orange Bracket the high affirmative team was composed of Bobby Fowks and Richard Fleischaker; the high negative, Jefferson Herb and Dick Cole.

At the close of the sixth round Rogler Elliott, John McGehee, Marjorie Birks, Maxine DeVaney, Harry Alles, Russell Duncan, Jefferson Herb and Dick Cole remained in the race. The close of the seventh round resulted in the elimination of Harry Alles, Russell Duncan, Jefferson Herb and Dick Cole.

Judges have ranked debaters throughout the tournament. At the close of every round there have been eliminated—the team lost—debaters who ranked highest of all in their marks: Gwendolyn Bushner, Allan Seiler, Bobby Fowks, Russell Duncan, and Dick Cole.

Students in general have been praised by the judges for their finely prepared speeches and rebuttal, their knowledge of the question, and their good sportsmanship in taking defeat.

The affirmative team participating in the final debate is composed of Marjorie Birks and Maxine DeVaney, Castalians; the negative team, John McGehee and Rogler Elliott, Herculeans. In the final debate, held May 2, the debate cup was won by Marjorie Birks and Maxine DeVaney, Castalians.

The tournament closed with the presentation of awards to the winners.

THE STABILITY OF THE CONSTITUTION

At a great convention held in 1787, representatives of the colonies drew up what is, for the most part, our present day Constitution. It is a human document which is directly connected with the life of every individual, young and old, in the United States. The essential purpose of its establishment was the safeguarding of the rights of the individual. Accordingly, provisions were made by which the Constitution guaranteed to the individual certain rights held to this day. It especially guarantees the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; it insures religious freedom and freedom of speech, trial by jury, freedom of the press, and the protection of private property. The Constitution established, as a means toward securing these individual rights, three independent branches of government. A provision for its accommodation to different ages is contained in its provision for amendments. Its makers aimed at securing these individual rights, and today it comes to us sealed with the test of years.

Thinking people today recognize that our government is in greater danger than at any other time since its birth. According to James M. Beck, "This is due not to any conscious hostility of the spirit or letter of the Constitution, but to the indifference and apathy with which the masses regard the increasing assaults upon its basic principles.

We have inherited the Constitution from our forefathers, who fought, starved, died, that our nation might be free, and that a strong representative government might be established. But unless the American people give to their Constitution the intelligent loyalty which it deserves, it will not survive the perilous times.

A decent respect for our government demands that we examine the source of its power. Have we read the Constitution? Do we know what it represents? Are we alert to the forces within and without that aim at its destruction? Are we doing our part toward the maintenance of a stable, just and equitable government? We, as loyal citizens of the United States, cannot hope to ignore such vital questions as these, but should question ourselves as to our loyalty and devotion toward the bulwark of our nation, our Constitution.

Today is a day of unrest and discouragement. We see people unhappy, idle, and we say that something must be done to end the state of existing affairs. We thoughtlessly declare that we must have a change in government. We grasp at straws in a vain effort to better our economic conditions. No one will deny that we need reforms, but is our governing instrument the real cause of the trouble or is the trouble simply caused by our bad manipulation of that instrument? This is not the only great financial crisis in America. In 1837, during Jackson's presidency, we met one of our worst crises caused by the bad financial policy of the president. There were panics that involved the whole country, and out of these conditions grew up hardships that seemed unendurable, but not once did our people under our Constitution fail to pull out of these conditions.

We say that there is too much dissension and distrust for us to live comfortably with one another. Remember that only a few years ago America was torn by Civil War, yet our government survived. Brothers fought against brothers, the North on one side, the South another. Division of the states seemed inevitable. Yet the years since that period for the United States have been glorious years.

The greatest foe of America exists in the minds of her citizens. Though we do not realize it, every day our government is being threatened by such foreign parties as the Communists and Nazis who are attempting to undermine our morale, thus causing us to doubt the things we've respected as good. Because we do not like some laws, disrespect for all laws seems to be rampant. Because we do not like some officials, respect for all authority is waning. We're looking for our own way all the time. Therein lies the greatest danger to our government and our Constitution.

We must create in the minds of citizens a realization that ours is a government that has survived difficulties in the past, and that it will survive our present troubles. We must develop an individual responsibility for good law. We must create a respect for authority. We must remember that ours is a government, as Lincoln said, "Of the people, by the people, and for the people." Most of all, we must realize that the stability of our Constitution is the safeguard of American freedom. As Calvin Coolidge said, "As long as it is observed, those rights will be secure. Whenever it falls into disrespect or disrepute the end of orderly government will be at hand." This danger is before us. Then let us rally to the standard of loyalty and, with shields of devotion for our country, valiantly contest to protect our most sacred rights, and maintain the firm foundation on which it was laid, that it may become an impregnable fortress between the individual and the chaos of uncertainty.

THE MYSTERY OF THE VANISHING BABY

During the World Exposition held in Paris many years ago, a young English woman with her pretty little two-year old daughter had stopped off in Paris temporarily. The mother was the frail pretty widow of an English officer who had been stationed in India, and the two had just come from Bombay, bound for home.

Paris was so crowded for the Exposition that the woman counted herself fortunate to get a room at the Crillion. The little girl had seemed exhausted from the long train ride, and was now of such a color that the mother's first idea was to call the house physician, hoping fervently that he spoke English as she did not know one word of French.

The doctor, when he came—a dusty, smelly little man with a wrinkled face lost in a thicket of whiskers and a reassuring Legion of Honor ribbon in the buttonhole of his lapel—did speak a little English. He called the mother into the sitting-room, and said in a voice far from steady. "My dear lady, you must not think of moving this child, as her condition is very serious and she will have to be removed at once to a hospital." The mother was unable to speak for a few minutes, but when she at last recovered herself she cried hysterically: "Oh, doctor, what can we do to help her?" The doctor told her in soothing tones that there was nothing to worry about, and that all the child needed was a long rest and careful attention "And now," he said, "if you really want to help me, I would like to have you go to my house and fetch some medicine which my wife will give to you. You see, it is very necessary that I have this medicine, and it would be a saving of worry and time if you would go to my house armed with a note telling my wife of your purpose, as I have no telephone by which I may reach her." The woman at first hesitated, but finally was persuaded to go, as the need for the medicine was so great. In the lobby below, the manager of the hotel held an excited colloquy with the doctor, took charge of her most sympathetically, himself putting her into a Sapin and volubly directing the driver.

It was then that the woman's agony began. The house seemed to stand at the other end of the earth, when the carriage came at last to a halt in front of it. The doctor's wife, after reading the note again and again, stationed the tired woman in an airless waiting room and left her there so long that she was weeping with very desperation, before the medicine was given her. A hundred times during that wait she arose and started for the door, determined to stay no longer. A thousand times in the wretched weeks that followed she loathed herself for not obeying that impulse.

Then the snail's pace trip back to the hotel was another nightmare and it ended only when she leaped to the street and in sheer terror appealed to a passing man whose different boots and tweeds told he was a compatriot of hers.

He was still standing guard over her when, five minutes later, she arrived at the desk of the Crillion and called for her key, only to have the clerk blandly ask, "Whom does Madame wish to see?" At that a cold fear touched her heart, a sudden surrender to a panic born when, after the doctor had casually told her he had no telephone, she had heard the sharp ringing of its bell in another room.

But no, Madame must be mistaken. Ah, but 342 was occupied by M. Pierre and had been occupied by him these past two weeks. She demanded the registration cards only to find that the one which she herself had filled out that morning was not among them. The same house physician who had sent her on her tragic wild-goose chase across Paris protested now that he had never so much as seen her before in his life. All of the people who had seen her that morning steadfastly refused to believe that they had ever seen her before, and so firmly announced that she was slightly demented that she fully began to believe it herself. Her only aid and comfort was the afore-mentioned Englishman, who elected to believe her and was beginning to suspect that for some reason all these people were only part of a plot to conceal the fact of the disappearance of the child. This suspicion deepened when two days later he forced his way into Room 342 and found that there was no detail of its furnishings which coincided with the one etched in the poor mother's memory. After a long search for clues he at last made a discovery that enabled him to understand the motive of all Paris to silently obliterate an innocent little girl at large cost to the distressed mother. It was the purchased confession of one of the paper-hangers who had worked all night in hurriedly transforming Room 342 that started the unraveling of the mystery.

Perhaps the reader has already surmised that the doctor had recognized the child's ailment as a case of the Black Plague smuggled in from India; that his first instinctive step, designed only to spirit the mother away from the threatened hotel, had, when the child died that afternoon, widened into a conspiracy on the part of the police to suppress at all costs, the startling obituary which would have emptied Paris overnight.

Alone, on a great train speeding toward London was a lonely woman whose great sacrifice had given to the world this Exposition.

DROUTH

Parched, dry fields of yellow corn
Meet the sight on a sultry morn
In late summer; trees have shed
Their shriveled leaves; flowers are dead.

Beneath the red sun's burning rays
The earth is buried in the haze
Of Indian Summer's smoky dawn,
Night's brief, refreshing rest withdrawn.

Stark and bare against the sky,
Their lifeless outlines stretching high,
The victims stand in silent grief,
Watching, waiting for relief.

No quivering breath of cooling air
The stillness breaks. And everywhere
The shimmering waves of heat are seen
A dismal brown replaces green.

But ere the long, dull day is past,
The hush of evening reached at last,
A wandering cloud obscures the sun,
And Nature's worries soon are gone.

Then gently, first, with tender care,
Come soothing drops of moisture there.
The world revives, it lives again,
For God has sent His welcome rain.

Joplimo Contests

During the year the Joplimo has conducted a number of contests. The most recent were the literary contests.

The Tri-State Writer's Club sponsored the short story contest. There were many entries, some of which were estimated to be quite good. The first prize was won by Rebekah Blair, the second by Carl Nelson, and the third by Raymond Drennan.

The boys' literary societies—Herculeans, Gavel and Quills, L. C. F.'s, Athenaums—and the Maskers Dramatic Society sponsored the Constitution contest under the supervision of the Kansas City Star. First prize was won by Norman Sharp.

The girls' literary societies—Sapphonians, Philogians, Castalians, Atalantians, Olympiads and Sigma Gamma Lambda—gave prizes for the best peoms submitted. A number of very capable judges made the selections. First place was given to Florence Hazell, second to Hope Hampton, and third to Virginia Emerson.

In February contests were conducted among sophomores and juniors to see which rooms should have the most pictures made for the Joplimo. Room 202 won among the junior sections, and 303 among the sophomores. The victories were celebrated with two Tuesday morning parties.

In the ticket selling contest held in connection with the ticket sale for the benefit basketball games, Arthur Jones won first prize, a Joplimo.

In the Joplimo subscription contest, Dick Ash was the winner of a Joplimo, and Elinora Rouse won second prize.

In order to produce a more attractive and interesting school life section, the editors of that section conducted two snapshot contests during the year. The prize for the best snaps submitted in the fall contest was two tickets to the Junior Class Play. These tickets were won by DeJean Bell.

In the spring contest the prize consisted of two tickets to the Senior Class Play, and was won by Robert Neinstedt and John Gunn. Many usable pictures were submitted.

Senior Class Play

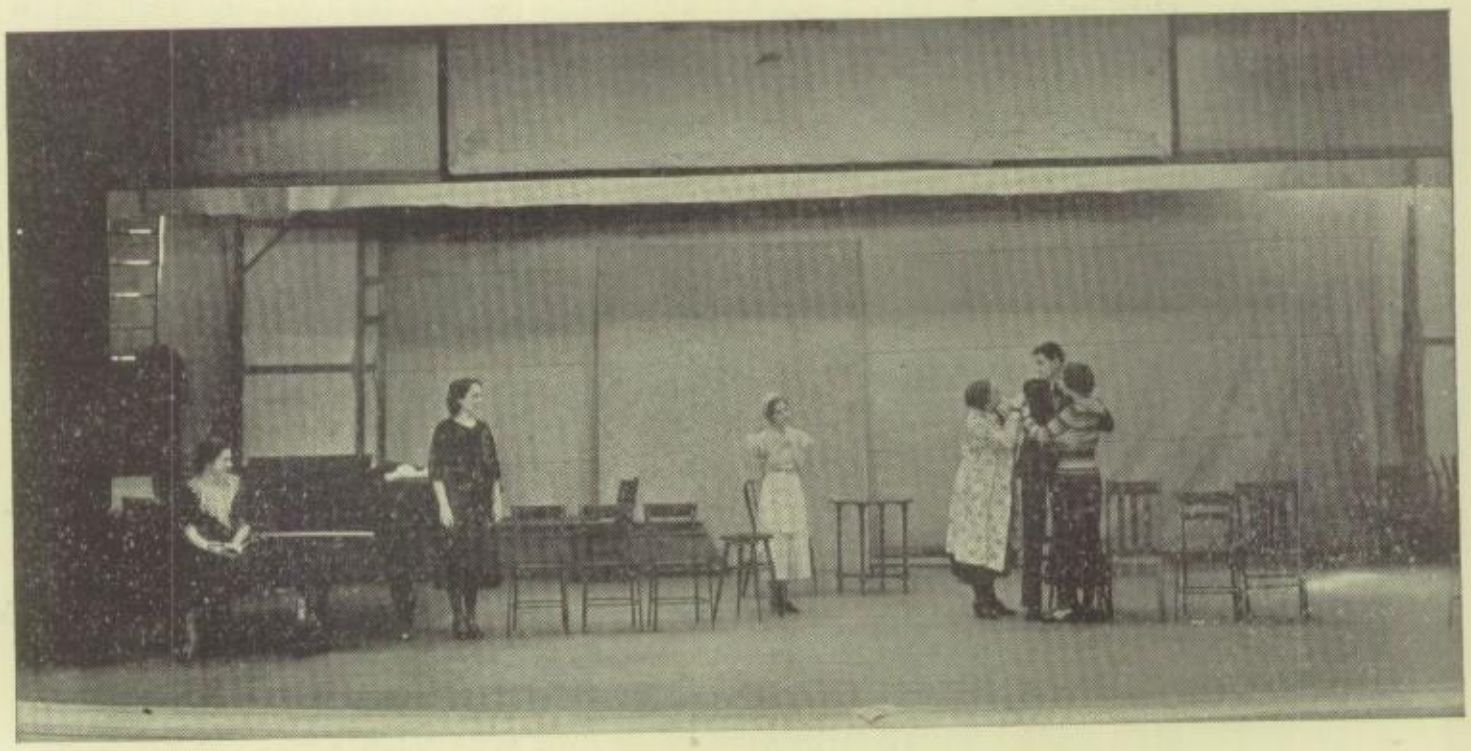
The senior class of 1933 presented the three act comedy "Mr. Pim Passes By," written by the talented playwright, A. A. Milne. The play, a subtle and clever comedy, was well received by the two large audiences.

The two presentations given under the able direction of Miss Barnett, dramatic coach, were exceptionally well produced and enacted. The two casts were very nearly equal in their display of dramatic talent, and gave very fine performances.

The casts for the two performances were as follows, with the first student listed appearing on Mondav and the second on Tuesday: George Marden—Glennis Lee Doty and Harry Richardson; Olivia Marden— Mary Curtis Chenoweth and Elinora Rouse; Dinah—Theda Duffield and Mary Louise Conner; Lady Marden—Mary Elizabeth Bell and Vera Martin; Brian Strange—Howard Haubein and Harold Davis; Carraway Pim—Clinton Dering and Neale Pinet; and Anne—Charlotte Fry and Isabelle Caylor.

Music and dancing were furnished in the second act by the following "extras:" Donald Bell, Esther Kitty Pratt, Dick Wells, Nadine White, Mary Frances Lawrence, Helen Crouch, Billie Ruth James, Frances Walker, Curtis Watkins, Clare Fletcher, Alma Godfrey, Langdon Merrill, Freeman Childress, David Manning, Howard Jenkins, Rose Warten, Milton Ebersole, Thelma McIntosh and Reba Showalter.

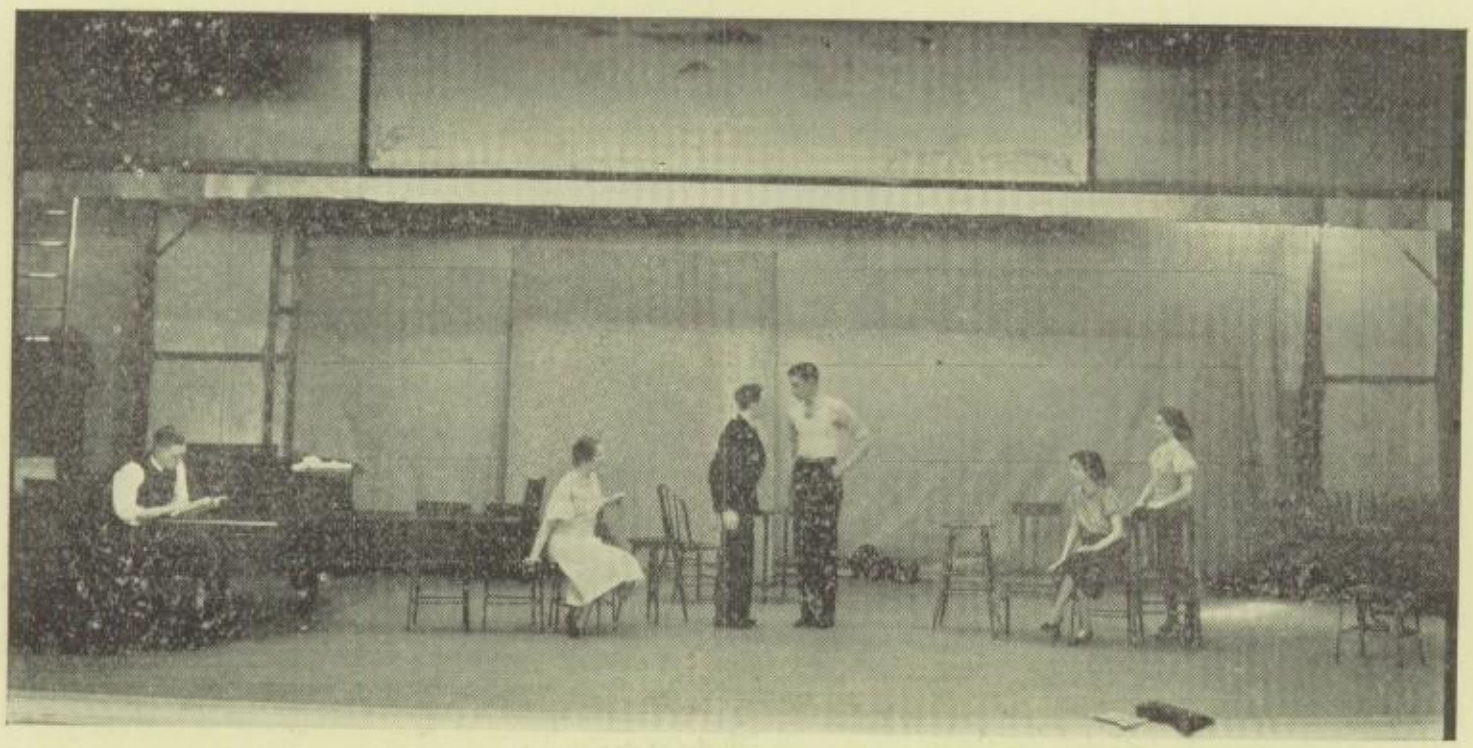
The pictures given below are merely rehearsal pictures, taken on an unset stage, without properties.



Senior Class Play

In the play, "Mr. Pim Passes By," gentle, vague, old Mr. Pim drifts into and brings temporary havoc to the calm existence of George Marden and his exquisite wife, Olivia. They listen to a rambling story of a man who has been a fellow passenger on the boat that brought Mr. Pim from Australia until, with an effort, he recalls the name—Telworthy. It comes as a bolt from the blue—it is the name of Olivia's first husband, a rogue who has done time for forgery and been reported dead for six years. To George the news is devastating, but he yearns to do the right thing. Olivia takes the news, after the first shock, rather flippantly. George's attitude makes her think, causes her to weigh him in the balance and find him, after some hesitation, a dear, good fellow, whose love is worth keeping. Mr. Pim drifts in again to tell them that Telworthy died at Marseilles of a herring-bone that stuck in his throat, and then, eventually, that his memory had been playing him tricks and that he had never known or met Telworthy at all. However, the incident has served Olivia with a fine opportunity to make George woo her all over again.

"Mr. Pim Passes By" was first presented at the Gaiety Theatre in London. Its first American presentation, produced by the Theatre Guild on February 28, 1921, at the Garrick Theatre in New York City, was a marked success.



Junior Class Play

"The Things That Count," a delightful comedy in three acts by Lawrence Eyre, staged and enacted under the direction of Miss Barnett, was a complete success in accordance with the established tradition of school plays under her supervision.

The story centered around the rich but haughty grandmother of a little girl with spinal trouble who lived in a frat in the slums. Her mother, who was a former actress and now a widow, was too proud to sacrifice her independence, and preferred doing fancy sewing to asking forgiveness of her rich and haughty mother-in-law for having married outside her sphere. In the end, the wicked grandmother turned out a Christmas angel with no end of charity and forgiveness, sinc these are the things that count.

As the petulant, dictatorial grandmother, Mary Jane Hill gave an excellent conception of the part. She was supported by Karl McReynolds, Betty Peacock, John Gunn, Atalie Barnett, Ned Smith, Gladys Mullins, Jack Chubb,Mary Katherine Saunders, Katherine Burress, Marjorie Sayles, Mary Louise Waring, Ruth Price, Rogler Elliott, DeJean Bell, Dean Johnson, Marianna Barbee, Norman Sharp, Beatrice Shapiro, Dorothy Carol Longacre.

The party scene in the second act, with its mingling of high life and low life and the mixture of races in the lower east side tenement, was one of the most interesting parts of the play.

Play Production

Under the direction of Miss Barnett, teacher of speech and dramatics coach, some very commendable work has been produced. The expression classes have given some finished and clever one-act plays. The junior class play and the two performances of the senior class plays were marked successes. In these productions two efficient faculty and student committees assisted.

The following are the junior class play committees:

Play selection committee: Jefferson Herb, Margaret Briggs, Ruth Farless and John Burnett.

Faculty committee: Miss Emma Price, Miss Laura Wolf and Miss Wynett Barnett.

Business staff: Floyd Cozad, manager; John McGehee, assistant manager; Dean Havens, ticket chairman, and John Burnett, head usher.

Property committee: Ivan Saunders, DeJean Bell, John Burnett, Leland Kitto, Ted Bormaster, Jack Campbell and Pauline Myers.

Cosmeticians: Misses Emma and Imo Price.

Student director: Marjorie McKain.

For the senior class plays these committees were selected: Chenoweth, Howard Haubein, and Harry Richardson.

Faculty committee: Miss Susan Haswell, Miss Ethel Reed and Miss Wynett Barnett.

Business staff: David Manning, manager; John Spicer, assistant manager; George Van Hoorebeke, ticket sales manager; Henry Lee Mills, advertising manager, and Curtis Watkins, head usher.

Property committee: Donald Bell, master; Margaret Spalding; Frances Walker; Dorothy Eggert; Dimps Ena Southard.

Cosmeticians: Misses Emma and Imo Price.

Student directors: Dick Wells and Betty Heffernan.

The stage staff for all plays consisted of: Harry Richardson, Bob Brown, Carl Matthews, John McGehee and Floyd Cozad.

On Nov. 23 the first hour dramatics class presented the play "New Moon" for the approval of the student body. Later it was given at a party of the Order of the Eastern Star and before the Parent Teachers Association.

"Weiners On Wednesday," by Edna Higgins Strachan, was produced by the sixth hour class, March 30 for assembly. April 11 it was reproduced for the Kiwanis Auxiliary and before the Woman's Alliance of the First Community Church on May 8. The play was given by the following cast: Russell Dickerson, Maxine DeVaney, Emma Jean Hardwick, Silas Haskins, Harriett Jane Mills and Adele Meyers.

THE ORCHESTRA

Reserve Officers Training Corps

The Joplin High School R. O. T. C. is one of the outstanding features of the school. It is under the direction of First Lieutenant E. A. Elwood, who came here this year from the University of Oklahoma. Lieutenant Elwood succeeded Captain Allison as military science instructor. He is assisted by Sergeant D. C. Collier, who has charge of all drill classes.

The unit has an enrollment of approximately 312 boys. It is composed of one battalion of four companies, and a cadet band. The unit goes on parade every Wednesday morning during activity hour. Our band holds the championship of Missouri.

The commissioned officers of the battalion are appointed each year according to rank in grades. The boy having the highest military grade during his sophomore and junior years receives the appointment of lieutenant-colonel. This is one of the highest honors that can be bestowed on a boy in the school. The boy holding that position this year is Clinton Dearing, whose average for the first two years was 96.7. The honorary lieutenant-colonel is a senior girl chosen by popular vote by the cadets. This honor was bestowed on Esther Kitto. The rest of the staff, which is headed by Dearing, is made up of the following boys: Jack Rauch, major; William Brittain, captain; Granvil Boyd, personnel adjutant; and Robert Hollinger, range officer.

Non-commissioned officers on the staff are: sergeant majors, Floyd Cozad and Billie Martin; first sergeant, Louie Degginger; supply sergeant, John McGehee; range sergeant, Robert Fowks.

Another organization included in the unit is the rifle team. After a series of try-outs, the following ten boys were selected to represent our school in the corps area meet: Westerman, Shouse, Brittain, Featherston, Davis, Crosby, Fletcher, Lea, Haubein, and Wiles. The team ranked eleventh in the meet as compared with fifteenth last year.

An organization known as the Diamond and Disc, organized for the purpose of helping the instructors in any way possible, is active among military students. At its first meeting of the year the boys elected Clinton Dearing to be president.

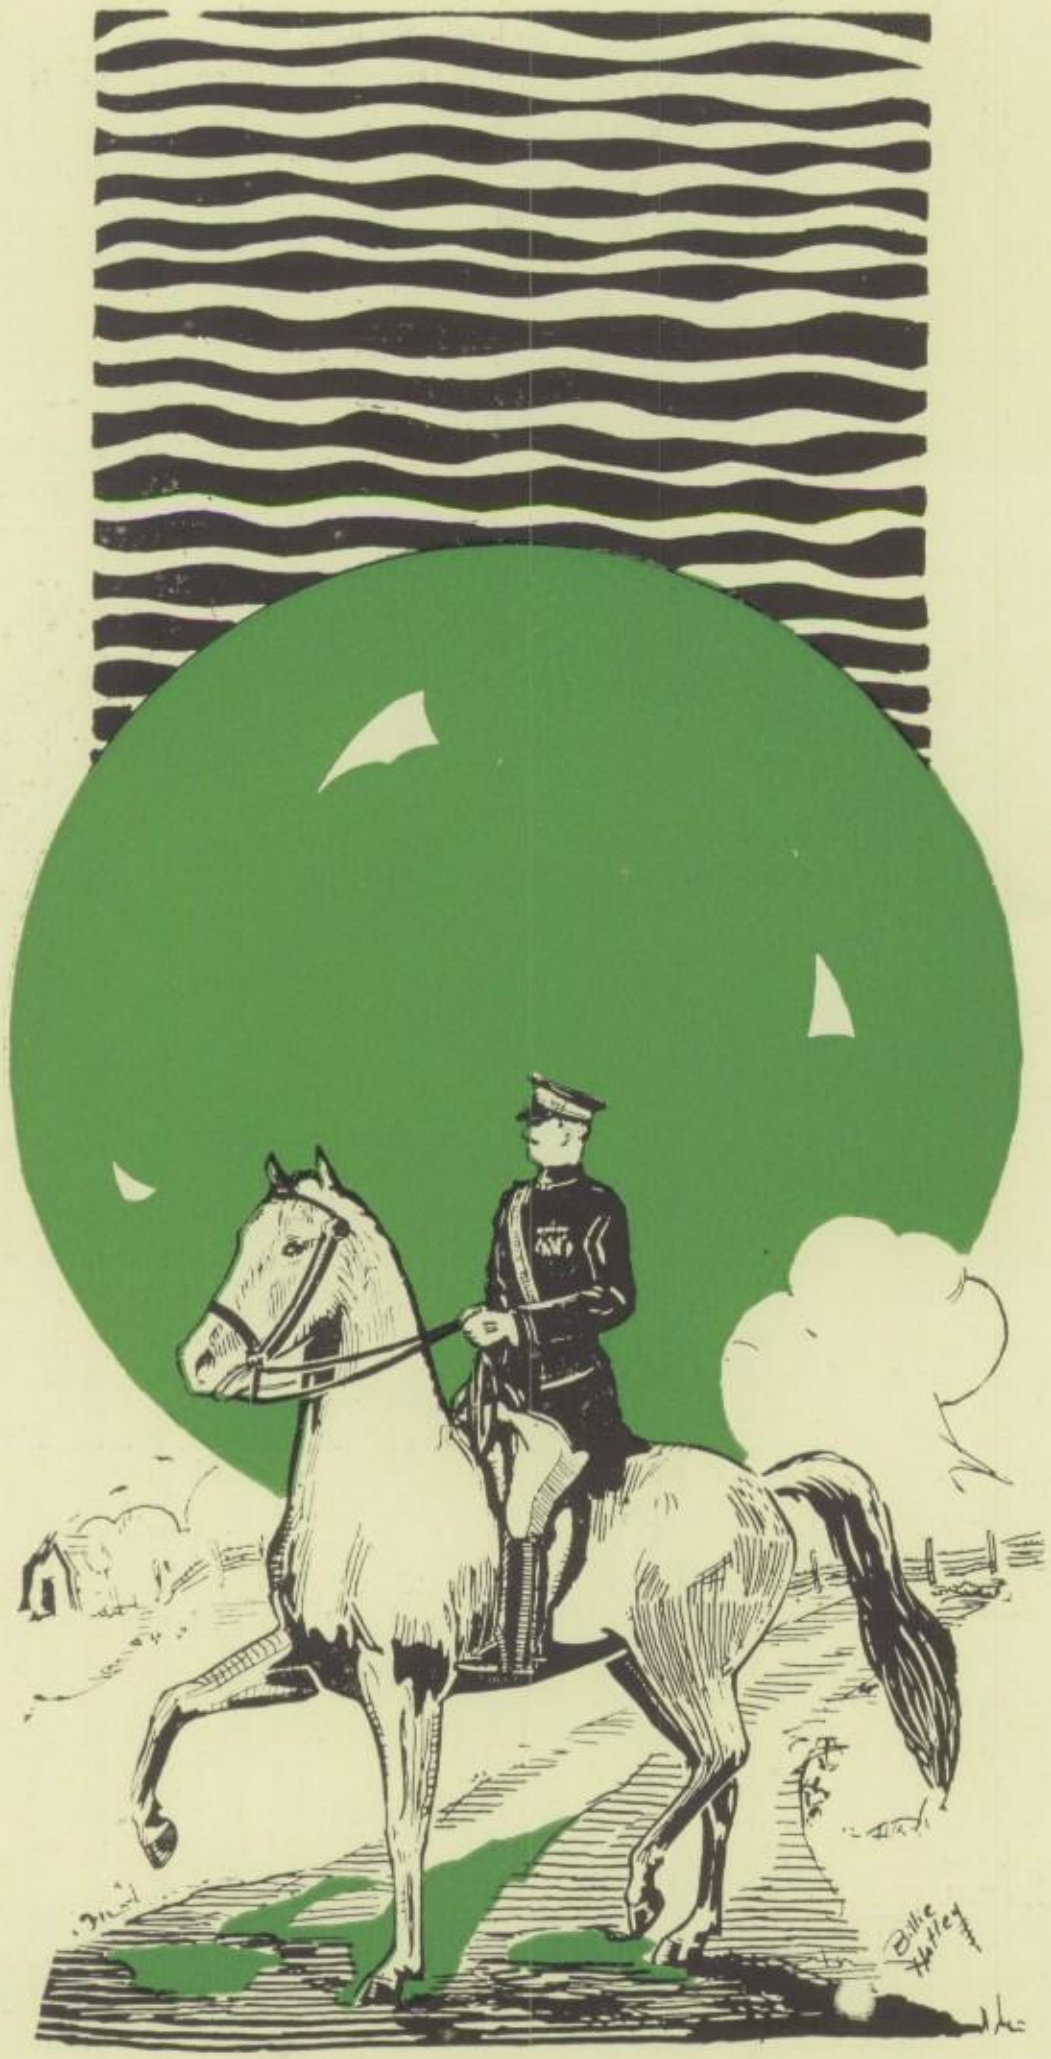
This section is appropriately dedicated to Missouri's military genius, General John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American expeditionary forces in France in 1917-1919. General Pershing was born in Linn County, Missouri, in September, 1860. It is interesting to note that, though a military man, General Pershing is an ardent supporter of all peace movements. Missouri is proud to have produced so great a man, a man beloved and respected throughout the entire world.

Gen. John J. Pershing



ATHLETICS

Football

Treadway, Tom, Soph., full. Tom was a consistent ground-gainer and was noted for his smashing line-bucks.

Core, Carl, Soph., full. "Croppy" was especially known for his long spiral punts and his spectacular runs for touchdowns.

Fletcher, Clare, Sr., quarter. "Fletch" was a heady experienced signal caller on the team.

Alvin, Clark, Jr., half. Clark was a small but mighty back who had the knack of going places.

Jones, Art, Sr., half. "Jonsey" will be remembered for his "freight-train" smashes over tackle.

Saunders, Paul, Jr., half. Paul was an exceedingly hard man to stop when he got started.

Wilbanks, Paul, Jr., tackle. Wilbanks made it plenty "hard" for any of the other team who tried to take him out of the play.

Cox, George, Jr., Ouarter. Captain Cox's forward passing game was always a big threat to the opposing teams.

De Graffenreid, Bill, Jr., full. When "Dutch" hit the line he was bound to make a gain.

CHEER LEADERS

Wells, Lawrence, Brewer, Pinet.

Football

Spicer, John, Sr., Guard. "Spice," though a rather quiet sort of person off the field, proved he was a fighting linesman.

Fowler, Emerson, Jr., Center. (Cap. elect.) Fowler was an accurate snapper-back, and a valuable defense man.

Morlan, Garold, Sr., Tackle. Morland displayed much ability in playing his position at tackle.

William, Davis, Jr., Guard. "Bill's" size was no handicap as many an enemy player found out when he was stopped in his tracks.

Brickell, Harold, Sr., Tackle. "Brick" was famous for both his offensive and defensive work in the line.

Blair, Harry, Sr.; Guard. Blair was one of the jolliest players on the team in addition to being an expert guard.

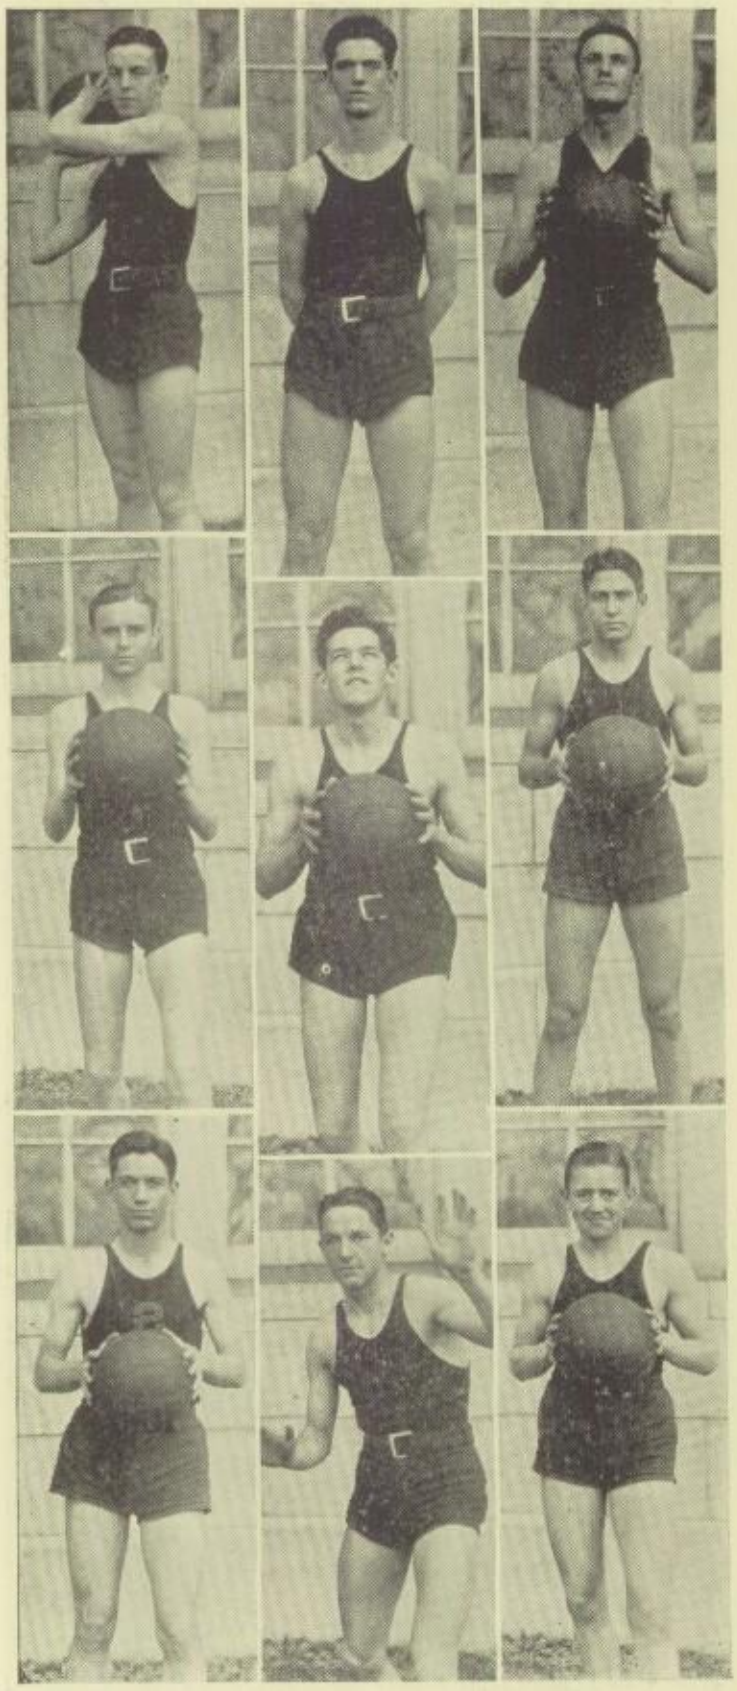
Smith, Barton, Sr., End. "Bart" was the smallest and probably the "fightinest" man on the team.

Ash, Dick, Jr., Guard. Dick, though hampered by injuries, during most of the season, showed his worth as a linesman when he did play.

Glaze, Harry, Sr., End. "Slick" lived up to his name by getting away and intercepting long passes.

THE SQUAD

Top row: Ehrgott, J. Manning, Jones, George, Mitts, Puckett, Jacobs.
Bottom row: Camp, Bradfield, Thayer, Gooch, G. Manning, Snyder, Hamilton.



Basketball

Manning, David, Sr., Forward. Dave was a fast player and a certain shot when it came to making pointers.

Jones, Art, Sr., Guard. Art proved that he had talent in basket ball as well as in being football captain.

Barnett, Woody, Soph., Forward. Woody was always a hard fighter who could be depended upon in crucial moments.

Burnett, John, Jr., Forward. Johnny, always full of pep and good spirits, was a valuable asset to the team.

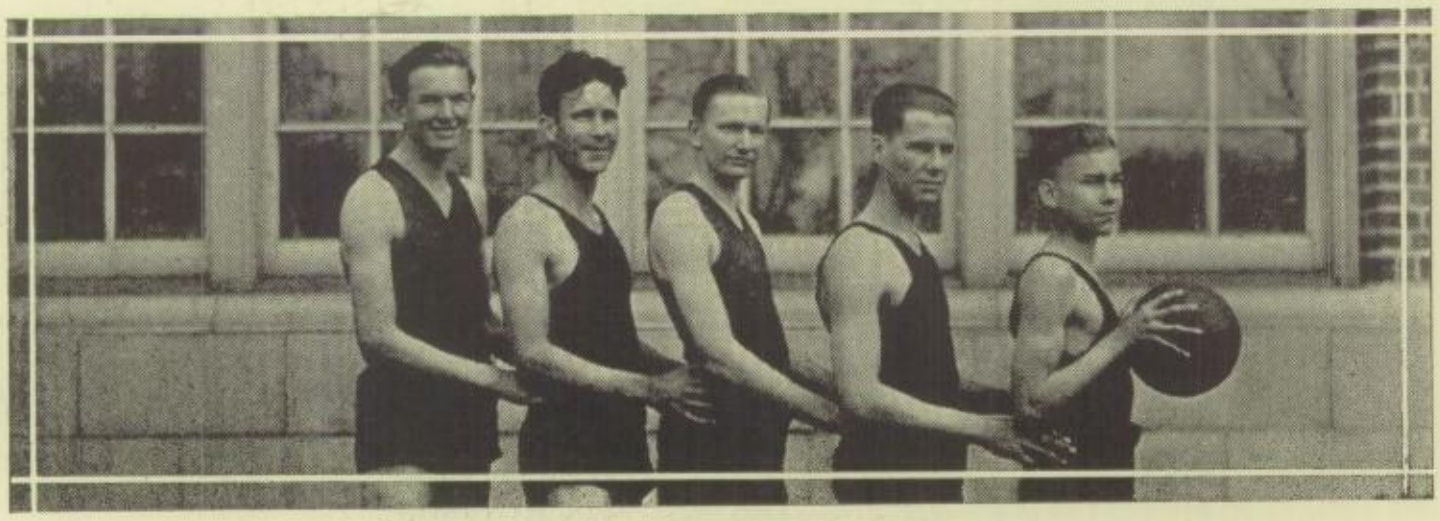
Stevens, Paul, Sr., Center. Stevens was a flashy player whose loss fill be sorely felt.

Kenney, Junior, Soph., Forward. Kenney was a brilliant forward who had a dead eye for the basket.

Atteberry, James, Jr., Guard. Atteberry's passing and his occassional difficult shots were a great help to the team.

Rauch, Jack, Sr., Guard. Jack was a good little man whose hard work justly entitles him to his "J."

THE SQUAD



Ingersoll, C. Barnett, White, Hosp, Slinker.

Basketball

McGee, Kathleen, Sr., Guard. Kathleen was known for her fast playing and excellent team work.

Garrison, Pauline, Sr., Forward. Pauline was captain and high scorer of the team, with an individual scoring of 435.

Edwards, Gladys, Sr., Center. Gladys has proved to be a very valuable player. She out-played every center she jumped against.

Foster, Athie, Sr., Forward. Athie was an excellent forward. She was a constant player and could be relied upon to do her best.

Garrison, Maxine, Sr., Guard. Maxine was a quick, efficient player. She always got the ball when it was in her territory.

Martin, Ruth, Sr., Center. Ruth was a fast and dependable center. She could always get her ball.

Flaherty, Dorothy, Soph., Forward. This was Dorothy's first year, but we hope not the last, as she proved herself valuable as forward.

Saunders, Vivian, Junior; Guard. Vivian was one of the hardest workers on the team. We are fortunate in having her back next year.

Robinson, Gertrude, Soph., Gertrude has played almost every position and is capable in all.

THE SQUAD

Track

As we go to press, the track season has hardly had time to get well under way, but our men have made a flying start, and give promise of a grand finish.

The following boys are entered in the various events:

Mile run: Blair, Camp, Miller, Geister
Half-mile run: Bradfield, Childress.
440-yard dash: Crosby, Rauch, Brookshire
220-yard dash: Mitts, Rauch
440 relay: Mitts, Crosby, Rauch Geister

Broad jump: Brickell, Miller
High jump: Mitts, Kenney, Ehrgott
Shot put: Jones, Davis, Brickell, Sampson
Discus: Davis, Jones, Sampson, Gooch
Javelin: Davis, Jones

The opening meet of the season, a triangular meet with Pierce City, Sarcoxie, and Joplin participating, was held in Joplin, March 31. Joplin won the meet with 55 points, Pierce City was second with 25 points, and Sarcoxie third with 15 points

Joplin winners were:

Mile: Camp, second. Pole vault: Barnett, second.
100-yard dash: Mitts, first, Time 10.5 sec. Rauch, third.
220-yard: Mitts, first, Time 25.9 sec. Geister, second.
440-yard: Crosby, first, Time 60.5 seconds.
Half-mile: Bradfield, first, Time 2:32.2.

Shot put: Davis, first. Distance 36 feet, 11 in. Brickell, third.
Discuss: Davis, second. Jones, third.
440-yard relay: Joplin (Rauch, Crosby, Geister and Mitts. Time 49.9 sec.

The second meet was held in Joplin on April 7. It was a triangular meet, with 57 points, while Carterville counted 25 points, and Riverton 18.

Joplin placed first in: 100-yard dash, discus, shot put, broad jump. Second places were won in 100-yard dash, half-mile, discus, high jump, and third places in mile run, 440-yard dash, half-mile, pole vault and shot put.

A dual meet is under consideration with Carthage, at Carthage. Joplin will Springfield later. Lamar, Nevada and Joplin are planning a triangular meet to be held in Joplin, and there is a possibility that Joplin will meet each of these attend a district meet at Miami, April 21, and the Southwest Missouri relays at schools in dual meets.

TENNIS AND GOLF

As these sports are for the most part summer sports, there is never a very active interest in them, during the school term. The tennis teams are usually quite active in the early fall, and a number of very fine players have been developed from our student body. The golf season is just getting under way, but all indications are that some excellent records will be made.

INTRA-MURAL ATHLETICS

There were many intra-mural football games in the fall among the boys' literary societies, and other school organizations. The Athenaeums clinched the championship, while the G. Q.'s took second place, and the L. C. F.'s third place.

In the inter-society basket ball league games, the final rankings were as follows: Athenaeums, L. C. F.'s, Hi.-Y, G. Q.'s and Herculeans.

A series of inter-society base ball games is also planned.

There have been games of various sorts, according to the season, among the gymnasium classes, and the platoons of the R. O. T. C.

The J Club of Joplin High was reorganized this spring, after several years of inactivity. Any boy who has won an athletic "J" is eligible for membership. The purpose of the organization is to promote clean athletics in the high school, and to determine on what basis one may be entitled to wear a "J". There are approximately thirty-five members.

This section is dedicated to Missouri's illustrious statesman, Champ Clark. Although born in Lawrenceberg, Kentucky, in 1850, he is a naturailzed Missourian. His political career reads like a book — president of a college through all stages of advancement, speaker in the House, almost President of the United States, barely being defeated as Democratic candidate by Woodrow Wilson. A man of great political achievement, Mr. Clark will live forever in the annals of Missouri history.

The National Honor Society

Established
Year of 1926

Sponsors:
Miss Price, Miss Colvin

Purpose:
To encourage scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

Colors:
Purple and Gold

The National Honor Society, often called the "Torch" Society, is a national institution emphasizing the real importance of scholarship. Too often the real leaders of the class are overshadowed by more glamorous figures; true ability made insignificant by superficialities, and for this reason the National Honor Society was founded in 1900. Since that time many chapters have been organized throughout the world.

The first qualification for membership in the honorary society is scholarship; only the upper twenty-five percent of the class are considered; and from these, fifteen percent are elected by the faculty on the basis of character, leadership and service. This year fifty-two seniors were chosen for the distinction, and the society was formally installed April 14, in the high school auditorium.

To these outstanding members of the graduating class, is given the "Torch" of progress, the emblem of this society. Keep burning always the pure flame of character, strive always to keep lighted the white flame of devoted service, and live up to the trust bestowed upon you, you are the torchbearers of the future

Quill and Scroll

Established
March 21, 1930

Sponsors:
Miss Barlow, Mr. Buskett

Motto:

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

The Quill and Scroll is an international society for aspiring high school journalists. About four years ago a chapter of the organization was established in Joplin High School. The popularity and interest was instantaneous.

Membership in the organization is limited to members of the Joplimo and Spyglass staffs who have a grade average of 80, and a recommendation from the sponsors. Furthermore all prospective members must submit to the National Board of Quill and Scroll a specimen of their work. The specimens sent for the approval of the National Board this year were praised for their excellence and originality. Both high school publications were enthusiastically congratulated.

The Quill and Scroll was organized for the purpose of instituting the ideal of scholarship, advancing the standards of the profession of journalism, and promoting a more general interest among high school students for true journalism, "that true art of exact and dispassionate thought reduced to the printed word."

This year's chapter was installed with the organization and election of officers, March 30. The society was formally and publicly installed April 21.

National Forensic League

Established, Feb. 20, 1933 — Sponsor: Miss Moran

Much to the credit of Joplin High School, there was granted on February 20 1933, the petition for a chapter of the National Forensic League, the purpose of which is to honor with membership those students who have demonstrated singular ability and perseverance in forensic work.

Organization of our chapter, No. 458, was effected Fabruary 22, 1933. This chapter has become outstanding in the state.

Four of our members have attained the degree of Distinction: Glennis Lee Doty, J. Neff Wells, Jr., Kenneth Gorsuch and William L. Brittain; twelve, the degree of Excellence: Robert Fowks, Robert Richards, Harry Alles, Paul Stevens, Allan Seiler, Marjorie Birks, Richard Craig, Rogler Elliott, Rex Titus, Maxine DeVaney, Paul Church, and Loren Watson; eight, the degree of Honor: Margaret Couraw, Gwendolyn Bushner, John McGehee, Jefferson Herb, Dick Cole, Garret Morrison, Richard Fleischaker, and Norman Sharp; and two, the degree of Merit: John Sohosky and Claude Parker.

In the National Forensic League Tournament and Convention in which sixteen schools were represented by more than a hundred students, our debate team placed fourth; J. Neff Wells, Jr., fourth for oratorical declamation; Rogler Elliott, fourth, and Norman Sharp, second for original oratory; and William L. Brittain tied for first in extemporaneous speaking.

Ours was the only school that placed in every event entered.

William L. Brittain and Norman Sharp are eligible to compete in the National Forensic League Tournament to be held in Wooster, Ohio, in May.

The Heruclean Literary Society, founded December 5, 1922 is the oldest society in the high school. The purpose of the society has been to promote debate and oratory. Each year many of its members have won honors in the state and inter-society tournaments. Norman Sharp, one of the members, won the oratorical contest on February 16, 1933. Its scholastic standing was high this year, over one-third of the members being on the honor roll.

Its weekly programs were based on the major current events of the year. Members of the society and Joplin business men gave talks on these topics in the meetings.

The club had in its membership: Sophomore and Senior class presidents; Drum Major of the band; minor officers on Joplimo and Spyglass staffs; many officers in R. O. T. C., and officers in other social, musical, military and dramatic organizations of the school.

"The pen is mightier than the sword."

Sponsor: Lucille Buck

The Gavel and Quill Literary Society, one of the oldest and most popular societies in Joplin High School, had a very successful year in 1932-1933. The weekly programs throughout the year were very instructive and interesting. A musical program was given early in February at which all the girls' literary societies were special guests. Two clever and amusing programs were presented in assembly and were enjoyed by the entire student body.

The G. Q.'s were active in all the activities of the school having representatives in the state debate team, the spring debate tournament, musical organizations, National Forensic League, the Joplimo and Spyglass Staffs, athletic and dramatic organizations, and oratorical contests. Two members had important roles in the Junior Class Play, and two in the Senior Class Play.

The purpose of the Athenaeums Literary Society is to develop appreciation of good literature and to promote interest in public speaking. The ideals of the society are character, purity and democracy. Any student of the Joplin High School who does not already belong to any other literary society of the school, who is democratic, has a general average of M in his grades, who is known to be honest and of a clean character, who is unselfish and able to cooperate may become by election a pledge of this society.

The Athenaeums have several R. O. T. C., officers, as well as members on the Spyglass staff. The members of this society took a very active part in school activities, lending thier support and loyal cooperation whenever possible.

The Athenaeums were very successful in the inter-society athletic events. Under the able leadership of their athletic captains they produced splendid football, basketball and baseball teams.

The Philogian Literary Society was organized for the purpose of encouraging all literary purposes and promoting friendly relations among the girls of Joplin High School. For their theme the first semester they chose "Famous Women of Our Times." Many interesting programs were given on this theme by both members and pledges. Outside speakers composed the main part of the programs of the last semester.

The Philogians considered this year a very profitable one for them. They promoted all school enterprises and contributed much to the literary activities. Their membership included three members in the Junior Class Play, two members in the Senior Class Play, two teams in the Debating Tournament, one participant in the Oratorical Contest, Editor-in-Chief, Literary Editor, and Humor Editor of the Joplimo, and one Spyglass Staff member.

After such a successful year in literary, scholastic, and social affairs, the Philogians felt that they had indeed lived up to their purpose and had added much to the fame and honor of their society.

Colors

Orange and Green

Motto:

"Excelsior"

Flower: Calendula

Sponsor: Miss Moran

The aim and goal of the Castalian Literary Society was to investigate subjects of a literary interest, to train the power of observation, to emphasize the joy and value of reading, and to enrich the taste and judgment of literary values.

The subject or theme for the first semester was "Famous Literary Men and Women of America." During the second semester the subject studied was "Recent European Literature." These programs included not only interesting and educational talks given by members or outside speakers, but also musical numbers and recitations.

The event which the Castalians felt was the most important of their year's work was the presentation of a Crosley radio to Joplin High School. The Society earned the money for this radio. All the activities and enterprises of the school were loyally supported by this society. Their membership included participants in the annual spring debate tournament, members in the glee club and orchestra, Editor-in-chief of the Spyglass, a member of the Junior Class Play, the President of the Tri-State district Girl Reserves, and members of the Joplimo staff.

The Sigma Gamma Lambda Literary Society was organized to promote friendship among senior girls and to accomplish something worth while in both literary and social work. At their regular meetngs each week they had programs of both educational and recreational nature. The first semester an intensive study of Brazil and Switzerland dealing with their people, customs and geographical conditions, was made by members of the society. The second semester, travel talks were made on the different states of the union, particular attention being paid to Flordia and its resorts.

This society felt that it had been very successful this year since it began with ten old members and now has an active membership of forty-five. Its membership included four members in the Senior Class Play, and two members in the Glee Club. All the members cooperated with the faculty and the other socities and helped in every possible way to make this year a sucessful one for Joplin High School.

The Olympiad Literary Society had every occasion to regard itself with pride this year. In the weekly programs of the first semester, current topics dealing particularly with the Chinese-Japanese War and the Russian Soviet government were discussed. Second semester programs dealt with the study of the lives of great personages whose birthdays occured within the week of presentation.

This year every member adhered strictly to the rule of keeping her grades up. An average of S in English and M in all other solids was striven for in order to remain a member of the organization. A great percentage of the members were honor roll students.

The Opympiads were prominent not only in enterprises of a scholastic nature, but they were represented in every activity in the school and won innumerable honors in all fields.

The Atalantian Literary Society was very active in social as well as Literary work th's semester. They not only cooperated with the school in its plans of service Thanksgiving and Christmas, but as a society did much charity work.

The topic for study for the first semester was, "The Customs of Different Countries." During the second semester no definite theme was selected, and various subjects of literary interest, interesting political and social situtations, current events, and a variety of other topics were studied. With such well planned programs as these, all the members felt that they had greatly broadened their views and added to their knowledge many points of literary and educational value.

The Atalantian membership included a glee club member, the Associate and Faculty Editors of the Joplimo, Spyglass members, and the Valedictorian of the Senior Class.

The M Club was composed of girls who were interested in athletics and in winning a state letter. To earn this letter each girl had to earn one thousand points which were given for good health, a perfect body, high scholarship for one or two years, good sportmanship, spirit of service, gymnastis ability and participation in various sports, such as basketball, volley ball, tennis, swimming, hiking, and track. In order to win these points many hikes and outdoor sports were enjoyed as well as social affairs which included parties and a wiener roast.

To win a state letter is quite an honor, and all the members of this club worked hard for their letters. The first semester three girls received their M's by finishing the work which they had started the previous semester The other girls endeavored to win their letters by the end of the year.

The Fencing Club is one of the most interesting clubs in Joplin High School. It meets at the First Presbyterian Church every Tuesday night at 7:30 and the members practice the ancient art of fencing.

The sponsor, Mr. Henley, worked under Dr. Henry F. Kallenberg of Chicago and Springfield, Massachusetts, a noted fencing instructor, formerly of the National Y. M. C. A. Institute. Dr. Na'smith of Lawrence, Kansas, said of Dr Kallenberg: "He gave me the hardest work I ever had in fencing."

Each year the Fencing Club holds a contest to see who is the best fencer. The competition was very keen th's year, due to greater enthusiasm. Frances Smith proved to be the best fencer.

The Maskers Dramatic Society is composed of thirteen girls and thirteen boys. To become a member one must first be picked for try-out, successfully pass the try-out and then be chosen by the society.

This year the society was very proud of winning the float contest held in connection with the parade at the Fort Smith game. The float beautifully depicted "The Queen of Autumn" against a setting of red, yellow and brown leaves. Miss Donna Louise Williams was their queen and Misses Emily Jane Buxton and Carolyn Summerton were attendants.

Their first assembly program was a play entitled "Kidnapping Betty" which was received very well. At the second assembly a one-act play was given, entitled "Elmer." This play was a clever comedy, well presented and enthusiastically received by the audience.

Ancient Order of Alchemists

Established

November 22, 1922

Flower: Flowers of Sulphur

Motto

"Master the Hard Lesson"

Colors: Red and White

Sponsor: Mr. Busket

The Ancient Order of Alchemists was composed of students of Biology, Geology, Chemistry and Physics. Regular meetings were held on Tuesday after school, and many interesting and novel programs of a scientific nature were given at these meetings. Following is a model program:

"Astronomy"—Mary Brewer
"Minerology"—Gwendolyn Bushner
"Psychology"—Charlotte Fry
"Anatomy"—Herman Woolsey
"The Evolution of Weights"—Ruth Price
Commentor—John Gunn

The outstanding accomplishments of this year were a float in the school parade, two assembly programs and the donations of baskets to the poor.

Sonrisas Society

Established Sept. 1932

Flower: Spanish Needle

Colors: Brown and Gold

Motto:

The Door to Success
is labeled "Push"

Sponsor: Miss Wolfe

This society, the Spanish Society, is the youngest one in Joplin High School. It was founded in September, 1932. It was very active for such a new organization and did some very interesting things.

The purpose of the Sonrisas Society is to establish a better understanding with the Spanish-speaking people, studying their customs, habits and their contributions in the form of are and literature to the world.

In their programs, the Sonrisas Club members traveled through the United States to Mexico and then into Central America, over to South America, finally reaching Spain. As they traveled through these countries, they studied each section and its habits of life. They were especially interested in one of the old cities of our own country—Santa Fe. They spent several days in this city watching her people, visiting the Artists' Colony and then seeing "The Bishop's Lodge" from which Willa Cather received her inspiration to write "Death Comes to the Archbishop." Other interesting programs were given on cities in old Spain. Castille, Barcelona, Seville, and other Spanish metropolises were studied.

MODEL PROGRAM

OTHER CLUBS

The Joplin Hi-Y Club is a very active boys' organization. Its aim is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character. The slogan is "Clean speech, clean sports, clean living." The club meets every Thursday night at the Y. M. C. A., for a program which inciudes physicial, social, and spiritual activities. The boys enjoy swimming, basketball, hand-ball, and other athletic games. They also enjoy weiner roasts and other outings. Frequently dinner meetings are held when programs consisting of religous addresses, discussions of moral and religious problems are given. This club did a great deal this year for the under-privileged boys of Joplin.

The officers for this year were: William Dollar, President; Jean Palmer, Vice-president; Lloyd Hollingsworth, Secretary; Charles Shunk, Treasurer; Mr. Pry and Mr. Wubben, Sponsors.

The H. P. O. R. H., is the geology club of Joplin Senior High founded in 1922. Its colors are Gold and Silver The motto is "Dig a Little Deeper." The flower is Ironweed. The purpose of this society is to create interest in the study of geology and mineralogy. The society went on many field trips to places of geological interest. They had many social events, including waffle feasts, a pie supper and a ham fry. The officers are: Landslide, William Dollar; Avalanche, Eugene Roberts, Rolling Stone, Dorothy McCaskell; Boulder, Vernon Scott; Geyser, Ruby Blankenship; Program Chairman, Beatrice Lay. Other members are: Mary Jo Becker, Bob Brown, James Cole, Marion Erwin, Bob Holt, Bob Laster, Florence Lenger, James Owen, Nadine Owens, and Mary Rupard. Mr. Buskett is sponsor.

The Philo Phronian Literary Society was organized in 1928 as a mixed society and was reorganized in 1933 as a girls' society. The motto is: "Forward ever, backward never." The colors are: Orchid and Silver. Their social activities included a Hallowe'en hobo party, a hay ride, banquet and a weiner roast. Officers for this year were: Dorothy Hanna, president, Vera Bonebrake, vice-president; Secretary, Juanita Gandy; treasurer, Nadine Allaback; program chairman, Nadiene Boreing; sgt.-at-arms, Esther Wilson; parliamentarian, Louise Wade Vicory; sponsor, Miss Krieckhaus.

The Radio Club, newest club in Senior High, is the giant plant-to-be, which is growing out of the seed sown by the Castalian Literary Society when they presented to the school a new radio. The club, which meets every Monday, thus far has been very progressive. The members are starting their study with the simplest form of radio—the crystal set. They hope to eventually include in their program the study of the super-heterodyne radio, one of the latest forms. At the first meeting, held in Room 301, the following officers were elected: Frank Ryker, president; Betty Bell Carter, vice-president; Russell Duncan, secretary. Miss Moran and Mr. Henley are the sponsors of the organization.

FAMOUS MISSOURI PERSONAGES

Many names, both famous and notorious, in those glamorous and romatic days of Western Expansion trace their origin to Missouri families.

The James Boys, Frank and Jesse, and the Younger Brothers, all notorious outlaws of the late nineteenth century, were natives of north Missouri.

George Caleb Bingham was a famous Missouri artist of Civil War days. Many of his paintings adorn the walls of Missouri's public buildings. It is said that he painted a dog into every picture.

Kit Carson, 1809-1868, that famous scout, trapper, exployer, and guide to parties going to the west coast, was a Missourian.

John Sutter, the man who discovered gold in California in 1848, and percipitated the gold rush, was a naturalized citizen of St. Louis.

John Charles Fremont, 1813-1890, for whom mountains, lakes and cities all through the West are named, was the son-in-law of Thomas Hart Benton, famous Missouri statesman.

From Ostober 1, 1922 to October 1, 1923, the American public paid $1,493,-702 for the books of Mark Twain, the famous Missouri humorist. The sales of the books of no other American writer have ever achieved such extraordinary figures.

Horton Smith, a present day golf champion hails from Joplin, Missouri.

Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, claims Joplin for his home town.

Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde of movie fame, is a native of Kansas City, Missouri.

Marion Talley, noted Metropolitan Opera Singer, also claims Kansas City as her home.

Out of Missouri has flowed a constant stream of other brilliant minds into the world. Among them are Rose O'Neill, originator of the "Cupie" dolls; the writers, Harold Bell Wright, Winston Churchill, Fannie Hurst, Sara Teasdale, Rupert Hughes, and the widely read columnist O. O. McIntire.

To Samuel Clemens, the best known Missourian, better known as Mark Twain, is this section dedicated. As a humorist he is unrivaled and his fame is undying. His mop of unruly hair, his writings, his sense of humor endear him to all the rest of the world, as well as to his native state. Born at Flordia, Missouri, in 1835 in obscurity. Mark Twain died a celebrity in 1910. His youth, spent in the vicinity of the Mississippi, forms the background for his later work. He is Missouri's favorite literary son.

MEMORIES OF DEAR OLD

Dear Diary:

Sept. 6: I begin my search for knowledge. This business of fixing schedules and stepping on Sophs., is not so hot.

Sept. 15: Student Council members strut nearly as much as Pres. Rauch, and Sec. Kitto. The facutly is having a picnic. Bet it rains!

Sept. 23: Our football squad must be "okay." We downed Quapaw 25 to 6.

Sept. 29: Joplimo Staff held its first meeting today and Editor Baney knows her stuff. Brittain can handle the business, too.

Sept. 30: Maxine DeVaney and her staff released the first Spyglass and it's swell! Floyd Cozad is business manager.

Oct. 12: Some folks are trying out for state debate team. Feature that! The Joplimo weiner roast proved a "get acquainted affair."

Oct. 30: I have never been to so many Hallowe'en parties. The literary societies have gone batty.

Nov. 4: Someone decided to have a parade for the Fort Smith game. Floats always look divine in the rain, but the Maskers deserved first place.

Dec. 6: The "Saps" gave the football boys a real banquet.

Dec. 16: The Junior Class Play, "The Things That Count," was a knockout. Our debater took second place at Coffeyville.

Dec. 23: We had a lovely Christmas assembly, but I welcome vacation. Wonder what Dad had in that big package.

Jan. 13: Joplin won over Nevada in basketball. Cox and Hosp who appeared for their last time, both played unusally well

Feb. 3: The G. Q.'s put on a "Mellerdrammer" in assembly. What a "heroine" Jackie Fitzer made!

Feb. 16: "Cookie" Sharp won the Oratorical Contest and were we proud of him! McGehee and Gunn were second and third place.

Feb. 19: The Castalians presented a swell radio to the school.

Mar. 6: Heavens, that handwriting analysis certainly did hit me!

Mar. 7: We hope the Olympiads are right about that prosperity.

Mar. 17: Thirty-eight students entered the annual solo contest. (Swell chance to get out of that hisory class.)

Mar. 23: The Squill and Croll—the Quill and Scroll has been organized.

Mar. 25: The Nat'l Honor Society has been chosen. Louise and Dorothy head the list. (Who's Who—I wonder?)

April 14: Who was it that fell all over the floor at the Philogian banquet?

April 15: My, such a banquet rush! What with dashing around to Prisons, Spanish Fiestas, Animal Kingdoms, and such, everyone is about to go goofy!

April 17: The Maskers gave an excellent performance of "Elmer."

April 24: Senior Class Play—Neale and Clinton make things happen.

May 11: Caps and gowns arrive. Oh such fits! Do I look like Mr. Hyde in my outfit?

May 12: Class Day—The day of seniors and still more seniors.

May 14, 16: Baccalaureate and commencement—the end is near Do I see a tear?

May 19: School is out for everyone. We'll always remember J. H. S.

Biology 10 A. Cats 'Pud' Hamilton

Thes cat is a felion animull. Some people like them for pets. Cats generally has whispers which makes them resembul the rabbitt. These whiskers is used to brush off the insides og whatever places they go through so as not to git themselfs dirty.

Their are many kinds of cats? for instance there gray cats and white cats and brown cats and blak ones and Pershun ones and Maltese ones and big cats and little cats and lady cats and gentleman cats? and alley cats and angora cats? Black cats are the most unpopular kind.

cats are not so awful particular about things what they take into there digentive track. in other words they eat just about anything and everything thes can git, including old garbage and spilt milk and any other kind of milk practically, including mice an old shoes - - not, tat's goats. But cats do eat lots of old shoes and brricks and cold water by their serramadin and fighting on the back fense - - and things.

Cats are also cute when they are playing and when they are sleeping. they have a funcy little wattle when asslespp but that is because they lay on their bake.

Cats are mostly pets of old maids adn young childern, many of them has no homes at Tall and any have no names either. cats are usually name Fluff, Peper, Blackie, Snow Ball or some othre cute little name but a cat will usually come if you put down a saucer of milkis and kall "kitty, Kitty33 long enuf.

Birds are up in cages to keep them away from kats. cats are mostly useful for catchings mice tut where their are no mice they just lye around and wate for someone to admire them thers are also wild cats, but whefy live mostly in afrion and south afrion. people like them even worse than they do now as cats.

Cats are nice soft little animals. I like tphm ver. e 66epos.stf

Congratulations . . . . . .

TO THE CLASS OF 1933

You will soon enter the business world to make a place for yourself in the complicated system which confronts you. We wish you success;—energy—conscientious effort—orginality—honesty—a pleasing personality and a willingness to cooperate with your fellow man, will pave the way.
As you progress you will realize the important part which printing plays in modern business—It has been truly said that "Printing is the Inseperable Companion of Achievement." By this is meant good printing—printing planned by experts and produced bv master printers and modern printing machinery. We attribute what measure of success we have enjoyed to a constant policy of producing charcater printing rather than what is commonly termed "job" printing. Your patronage will be appreciated.

"THE THRIFT STORE OF A NATION"

Thirty Million New Citizens

In our schools today are thirty million future housewives and business men, growing, developing, learning in an environment and under living standards of a quality never before known to humanity.

One of the greatest factors contributing to present-day standards of sanitation, safety, health, recreation, business and industrial development is ELECTRIC SERVICE.

Perhaps these thirty million new citizens do not fully appreciate the significance of electric service because it always has been a part of their daily lives. But their parents and grandparents know what it has done for mankind—many older than the electric light and power industry itself.

The parents and grandparents have seen the transition from the pre-electric age to the era of eletrical living. They knew the coal oil lamp, the slow and wasteful methods of cooking, the inconvenient and often dangerous methods of storing foods, and all other inadequate and unpleasant facilities for executing their daily household tasks. Today they flood their homes with light at the snap of a switch; in growing numbers they are depending upon the electric range to cook their meals automatically; by millions they have turned to the electric refrigerator for safe and convenient food preservation; and in nearly every home where electricity is available, these parents and grandparents have long employed efficient household appliances to save time—save steps—save energy.

You, the graduating class of 1933, know these conviences in your parents' homes. You will want them in your own homes a few years hence. Nothing you can buy will bring you more in comfort and convenience—in saving of time and labor —and your electrical living will cost you as little as anything else you enjoy.

In delivering this message to the graduates of 1933, the Empire District Electric Company welcomes the opportunity to add its word of congratulation and sincerest wishes for success in the years ahead.

STOP THE RUNAWAY!

$25 REWARD

Ran away from the subscriber, in Franklin, Missouri, on the 6th inst. a NEGRO MAN, named

JIM

About 35 years old, about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high, very black, and tolerable large eyes, with more white in them than is common; slow spoken, and a down look. Had on when he went away a wool hat, pretty well worn, a white roundabout coat of twilled linsey, and tow linen pantaloons; white wollen socks, new shoes, pegged in the bottom. The above reward will be given to any person who will deliver said negro to James Hickman, in Franklin, or confine him in some jail so that the subscriber gets him again, and all reasonable charges paid.

James Duncan—Missouri Intelligencer,

November 11, 1825.

The editors of the Joplimo acknowledge with thanks the assistance of the American Institute of Grapho-Analysis of Kansas City, Missouri, through whose courtesy the character analyses on page 161 were furnished. The analyses were made without any previous knowledge whatever of the character of the subjects.

We acknowledge also the kindness of Mr. Floyd C Shoemaker and Mr. Walter Williams who so graciously permitted us to use any material found in the books written by them on Missouri. Much of the valuable information was taken from the Missouri Historical Review, of whch Mr. Shoemaker is the editor.

We acknowledge further the kindness and generosity of the Joplin business people in helping us by contributing to our advertising section. We wish also to express our appreciation to the faculty and student body and to our sponsors, Miss Barlow, Miss Buck, and Mr. Livingston for the cooperation and consideration given us in preparing this 1933 Joplimo.
